TROOPS BATTLE IN WESTERN HUNAN; GENERAL SLAIN

CZECHS WANT TO FIGHT OR RETURN HOME

Situation In Siberia Is Declared Unbearable In Statement

HANDS ARE TIED

Army Forced To Support State Of Despotism And Anarchy

PLEA TO ALLIES

Statement Asking Relief Is Made Public At Vladivostok

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, November 15.—A memorandum which has been delivered to the Allied representatives stating the Czecho-Slovak views on the present Siberian situation says: "The unbearable conditions cause us to ask the Allies to consider means for giving us safe-conduct to the motherland, which the Allies have approved.

"The Czechs were prepared to guard the railway in the sector selected for them and have conscientiously fulfilled their t sk but now our guarding becomes impossible in virtue of its uselessness, also in consequence of the most primitive demands of justice and humanity.

"By guarding and maintaining order, our army is forced against its convictions to support a state of absolute despotism and unlawfulness which is reigning here under the protection of Czech arms. Burning of villages, murder of peaceful inhabitants and shooting of hundreds of persons with democratic convictions, also those suspected of political disloyalty occur daily, and the responsibility for this in the eyes of the world will fall on us inasmuch as we possess sufficient strength to prevent such lawlessness.

NEUTRALITY IS YOKE

"Thus our passiveness appears as a direct consequence of principles of neutrality and non-interference with Russian internal affairs. At the same time it causes us to appear as participants in the crimes that are being perpetrated as the result of our observing absolute neutrality.

"In bringing these enormities to the notice of the Allies, whose true ally the Czecho-Slovak nation has been, it is considered necessary to use all means to make known to the people of the world the tragic situation in which the Czech army is placed and the causes. We do not see any other way out than our immediate return to the Motherland or our investment with the right of free action in order that we may terminate lawlessness and crime."

SIGNED BY LEADER

The memorandum is signed by Dr. Cirsa, the newly appointed plenipotentiary of the Czecho-Slovak Republic who replaced Mr. Bohdan Pavlu, whose recall to Prague was demanded by 50,000 Czech soldiers because he was considered reactionary and listened only to the pleas of the Kolchak party.

The Czechs have guarded Irkutsk and Omsk, since March, when the Inter-Allied agreement was signed. Great importance is attached to the memorandum which will be officially considered at a meeting of the Inter-Allied Railway Board at Omsk on November 17, as it is believed that if the Czech's request was immediately carried out a crisis would be precipitated.

Local Chinese To Protest Foochow Affair: Japanese Send Warships To Fukien

Massmeeting Called By Students For Tomorrow Will Also Express Gratitude To U. S. For American Senate Action On Shantung

Over 10,000 Chinese are expected to attend a mass meeting called for Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the Public Recreation Grounds, West Gate, to protest against the shooting and killing of Chinese by Japanese rowdies in Foochow. An expression of gratitude for the reservation passed by the United States Senate on the Shantung question is also to be made. The meeting has been called by the National Students' Federation.

The Japanese Minister, Mr. Obata, in deference to the request of Mr. K. Mori, the Japanese Acting Consul at Foochow, has communicated a request to the Tokio Foreign Office for the despatch of a squadron of battleships to Foochow waters and the squadron left Japan Thursday, according to reports in the local press.

While various organisations in Fukien, including the Provincial Assembly, are clamoring for vengeance and asking for adequate reparation, Mr. Obata is said to be lodging a protest with the Peking Ministry against the action of the Foochow students in seizing Japanese property for destruction.

Mr. Chen Lu, the Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, has also protested against the sending of war vessels to Foochow. But Mr. Obata replied that this move is taken for the protection of Japanese lives and property in Foochow.

The Japanese authorities will offer an apology to United States Consul-General Carleton Baker and Mrs. Baker for the assault of Japanese on Mrs. Baker at Mukden, according to a report of the Japanese Asiatic News Agency. The offenders, the report said, will be adequately punished by the Japanese authorities.

Foochow Houses Looted; Martial Law In Effect

Martial law has been declared in Foochow and looting has begun, according to a private telegram received by the Yang Wu Kung Provision Merchants, in Shanghai yesterday.

The message stated that following the slaying of Chinese by Japanese rowdies, a military cordon has been drawn round the city. Traffic is cut after dark.

Ten houses were looted at Ta Wang Chwang, in the suburbs of the provincial capital.

Shops are going into liquidation daily. All vessels navigating the Chinkaho and other rivers are being searched by troops and but few ships call at the port since the incident.

The local buyers asked the Shanghai agents to stop shipping any more goods to the Southern port.

Christmas Mail Will Take Many Drafts For Home

Many drafts on New York and London will leave in the next few days as Christmas presents for the relatives and pals back home. The banks did a big business yesterday and buyers didn't have a thing to kick about with exchange hitting 165 on America and eight shillings on London. Late in the afternoon the rate dropped to 162. The official rate was 149¾.

Inexplicable Cable Tells Of Defeat Of Lodge Reservation

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, November 19.—A resolution for the ratification of the treaty containing the Lodge reservation was defeated in the Senate by 55 votes to 39.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 20.—The news of the adoption of the Shantung reservation by the United States Senate has created a profound impression in Chinese circles.

The Senate's action in defeating the Lodge reservation to the treaty is considered here as a reiteration of its stand favoring the inclusion of the Shantung clause, and as an illustration of its desire to be thoroughly consistent in its action favoring China.

There have been so many Lodge amendments and reservations that it is difficult to segregate them, unless they are numbered, this because the greater number of amendments and reservations proposed by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were known as Lodge measures, simply because Senator Lodge is chairman of the committee.

REJECTS AMENDMENTS

In Washington on October 17, however, the Senate rejected by a vote of 55 to 35 six proposed amendments favoring the restoration to China on a firm basis of her economic privileges in the Shantung Peninsula. Senator Lodge, personally, submitted the amendments which were voted on and defeated en bloc and at the time he notified the Senate that later he would move to strike out from the treaty the entire Shantung section.

From the despatches it would appear that Senate adopted a reservation to the Peace Treaty withholding assent to the Shantung arrangement on November 15 and then—on November 19—when the entire Shantung question was raised again by the Lodge reservation declined to withdraw its previous action.

JAP MERCHANT KILLS FAMILY OF THREE AND SLAYS HIMSELF

Enormous Loss On Stock Market Brings Tragedy To Import Man

DEED KEPT SECRET

Word Of Quadruple Killing Is Concealed From The Public For Days

DIE BY THE SWORD

Principal In Tragedy Stabs Wife And Babes After Gamble

Confronted by ruin from reckless speculation on the stock market and unwilling to leave his family to face disgrace a prominent Japanese killed his wife and two young children and pierced his own heart with the same sword with which he put his loved ones to death. The quadruple tragedy took place in his home in Shanghai last Sunday.

The man is understood to have been head of the provision department of a prominent Japanese firm. He is known to have speculated heavily in shares of the Shanghai Produce and Stock Exchange, the Japanese stock market here, and is reported to have been in debt Tls. 150,000 when he slew his family and himself.

The dead man was about 30 years old. He had lived in Shanghai with his wife, young son and daughter, for several years and had the reputation of being a shrewd business man, aggressive, yet careful with his small savings.

Following the inauguration of the stock exchange by the Japanese in Shanghai, the deceased's characteristics seemed to be altered and he appeared in the role of a daring speculator. He sold, it is said, by way of speculation a block of 3,000 shares on the exchange at slightly over Tls. 30 per share when the Japanese boycott made it appear certain that a market slump would take place. Had the expected slump materialised the man's speculations would have netted him a fortune.

But here Fate took a hand in the affairs of the Japanese. A cotton department was established on the exchange and instead of falling to a new low level the shares advanced by leaps and bounds from Tls. 30 to Tls. 70.

Desperate, he saw certain ruin staring him in the face. His meager finances would not begin to cover his enormous losses. He made several other ventures, it is understood, in an effort to recoup his losses but every turn of the wheel of fortune was against him.

Finally, in despair, he accepted the tradition of his race and decided that only through medium of suicide could the slate be cleaned.

But his affection for his family was great. He could not bear the thought of leaving his widow an object of pity and his children to grow to manhood and womanhood under a stigma. He decided they must die with him.

Going to his home the Japanese drew his sword and carried out his dread resolve.

We have as far as possible verified these facts. The Municipal Police claim that the case has not been reported to them. For this reason we are compelled to omit the names.

Italian Planes To Fly Over Shanghai En Route To Peking

Ten Italian aeroplanes will soon fly to Shanghai from Canton on their way to Peking, according to instructions received by the Shanghai city mayor from the Civil Governor of Kiangsu yesterday.

The entire air fleet, according to the message, is coming from Rome to Japan and then to Canton, where they will be stationed at Yentang of the Fanyu District. From Canton, the planes will proceed to Shanghai and after a short sojourn, they will fly to Nanyuen, Peking, where the Government Aerial School is located.

Japanese Consul Opposes Appointment At Tientsin

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, Nov. 19.—The Japanese Consul-General at Tientsin, Mr. Funatsu, has taken exception to the appointment of Mr. Pien Yin-chang as Chairman of the Tientsin General Chamber of Commerce and has protested against this appointment through diplomatic channels. In this protest Mr. Funatsu requests that Mr. Pien be forced to resign on the ground that he was the promoter of the Merchants' Union and a leader of the Ten Men Groups, two organisations that are hostile to Japan, and that his political sympathies are such as to render him an undesirable Chairman of the Tientsin Chamber of Commerce from the Japanese point of view.

It is understood here that Mr. Funatsu's complaint has been referred to the Ministry of Agriculture and Commerce, where it is likely to be set aside. A Chinese Chamber of Commerce differs from an American or British organisation of the same kind in that it is semi-official and is looked upon as a representative of the Government in many matters. None the less it is generally and strongly felt here that Mr. Funatsu's protest against Mr. Pien Yin-chang constitutes an unwarranted act of interference in Chinese domestic affairs and that this action, if successful, will establish a precedent that may tie China's commerce hand and foot to Japanese apron-strings. Hence strong pressure is being brought to bear upon the Government to uphold the appointment of Mr. Pien, and it is stated freely here that any other action by the Government will lead to serious popular outbreaks in Tientsin.

Anfu Club Losing Fight Against New Cabinet

Premier Chin Yun-peng Firmly Resisting Efforts To Dislodge Men He Has Named

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, Nov. 19.—The Anfu Club is holding out longer and harder than was anticipated in connection with the Cabinet question, and there is reason to believe that its opposition has been stiffened by Japanese support. Japanese who are in close touch with the local political situation have been very active lately, and numerous meetings and dinners have been held at which both Anfu men and prominent Japanese residents of Peking were present. It is, furthermore, understood in government circles that the Japanese have brought direct pressure to bear upon Premier Chin Yun-peng, who, however, has so far held out firmly for his original Cabinet, including Mr. Chou Tzechi.

The Japanese have everything to lose and nothing to gain by the appointment of the Chin Cabinet in its present form, and their opposition to it is not only looked upon as natural but it is also felt that failure by the Japanese to intervene in the present situation would have been surprising in view of their well known policy in dealing with all Chinese affairs.

PREMIER IS FIRM

What is regarded as more surprising than the intervention of the Japanese is the determined stand taken by General Chin Yun-peng for the maintenance of his original slate, a stand which, by the way, is expected here to result in complete success.

Those who hold the view that the Chin Cabinet will ultimately go through as it stands point out the fact that Civil Governor Chu of Shantung, a prominent member of the Anfu Club who is now in Peking, is working on the members of the Club to ratify the Chin Cabinet on patriotic grounds.

REPORT FROM SHANTUNG

Chu has just come up here from Shantung and is said to have told the Anfu men enough of conditions there to incline them to support Chin. Liang Shih-yi is also back in Peking and is supporting the Premier in his present stand for a representative Cabinet.

Hence politicians here expect that a few days more will see the ratification by Parliament of General Chin's nominees, together with the appointment of a number of Anfu men to posts as vice-ministers. Everything possible is being done to save the face of the Anfu Club, but at the same time the Premier, with strong support at his back, is determined to put his Cabinet through unchanged.

ORDER RESTORED IN VLADIVOSTOK

Recent Revolt Said To Have Been Planned By Gaida And Revolutionists

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Irkutsk, Nov. 20.—The Russian Telegraph Agency states: "The disorders at Vladivostok have been easily suppressed by the Government troops. The revolt was the outcome of a plot between certain persons belonging to the Socialist revolutionary party and General Gaida, who schemed to form a new Government, taking advantage of the difficulties at the front.

The majority of the population of Vladivostok remained completely loyal to the Government. The insurgents were for the most part deserters and dock laborers. The ringleaders have been arrested and perfect order reigns in the town."

German Mark Drops Fifty Points In Day

(American News Service)

Coblenz, November 16.—Saturday the German mark dropped fifty points the worst decline since the Armistice. Several banks paid four hundred and thirty marks yesterday for 100 French francs. The quotations Friday were 380 marks for 100 francs.

The Coblenz bankers expressed discouragement at the financial prospects of Germany and declined to predict the future. The rate for the pay of the American Army officers for November is 333 marks for 100 francs.

WAR REGULATIONS ARE ABOLISHED

Restrictions Peking Imposed On Teutons In China Are Removed

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 17.—The Central Government has drawn up the following set of new regulations for dealing with enemy subjects in China:

1. The order enforced during the period of the war to the effect that German and Austrian subjects shall stay in specified places shall be canceled.

2. Orders prohibiting German and Austrian subjects from traveling shall be canceled.

3. Orders prohibiting German and Austrian subjects from entering into China shall be canceled, and they may be admitted into Chinese territory with the permission of the Ministry of the Interior.

4. All interned German and Austrian subjects shall be liberated.

5. German and Austrian subjects shall be given the liberty of publication, but they must strictly observe Chinese publication laws.

6. Regulations governing the relief of needy German and Austrian subjects shall be canceled.

7 There will be no further deportations of German and Austrian subjects.

8. All further regulations regarding German and Austrian subjects and not specifically mentioned herein shall be nullified.

FIGHTING ON AS DEADLOCK IS UNBROKEN

Trouble Starts In Camps Both In The North And In The South

MILITARISTS WIN

Dr. Sun Yat-sen Predicts Early Downfall Of Tan Yen-kai

ONE LEADER DEAD

Constitutionalist Chief Ends Life Of Head Of One Division

With the internal peace conference deadlocked, incipient dissension has broken out in the Northern and Southern camps. Fighting has begun in Western Hunan between the Southern Constitutionalists and the Southern militarists. President Hsu Shih-chang and Premier Chin Yun-peng are at loggerheads with Generals Tuan Chi-jui and Hsu Shu-cheng and the Anfu Club in the North.

The Hunan outbreak is the result of the attempt of the Southern militarists to undermine the Constitutionalists' cause by trying to conclude a separate peace with Peking. General Chow Chi-fan, the Division Commander in West Hunan, has been killed by his constitutionalist subordinate, a regimental commander named Liao, because of the former's support for Generals Lu Yung-ting and Tan Yen-kai. The murder is significant in that it shows the resolution of the Constitutionalists to force their issue. Liao's regiment is now fighting the Southern militarists.

CONSTITUTIONALISTS STRONG

Dr. Sun Yat-sen, first President of the Republic of China in an interview disapproved the action of the Southern militarists and predicts the downfall of General Tan Yen-kai, the Southern commander at Hunan. Dr. Sun said that the Constitutionalists, as represented by Dr. Sun and the Old Parliament are too strong for the Southern militarists to ignore.

Asked whether General Chin Yun-peng, the newly elected Peking Premier, is sincere in his efforts for peace, Dr. Sun said he believes he will not last very long in office as his peace plans are already being frustrated. The scheme of General Chin, Dr. Sun said, was to get together the militarists of the North and the South to conclude a separate peace and ignore the terms of the Constitutionalists. General Chin fully expected that the Southern militarists, like those of the North, were in a position to dictate peace for the South.

HOPE FOR PEACE

Coming to the peace situation, Dr. Sun said that there is hope that his terms of peace will be accepted; that Parliament must have full liberty to exercise its functions, and that as long as there is hope for the acceptance of this stipulation by the North General Wang Yi-tang, the Northern peace delegate, will not leave Shanghai.

In Peking, from a dispute between Premier Chin and the Anfu Club over the appointment of a Minister of Finance, the controversy has shifted ground and is now carried on between President Hsu and General Tuan. President Hsu, taking the side of General Chin, insists that Mr. Chow Tsechi be appointed Minister of Finance, while General Tuan is indignant because the Chief Executive refused to accept his suggestion of a compromise. Little Hsu, Tuan's protege, threatens drastic action if Chow is appointed without the sanction of his Parliament, in which the Anfus predominate.

Senate Action Brings Praise

Chinese Newspapers Warn People To Watch Peking Action

Shantung Issue Up To People

Further comment in the leading Chinese daily newspapers yesterday concerning the United States Senate's action in adopting a reservation on the Shantung question in the Peace Treaty demonstrates the enthusiasm aroused.

The Eastern Times says, editorially, that nothing can be accomplished in the long run without justice and that the reservation to the treaty by the United States is concrete proof of this principle.

The Republican Daily News expresses gratitude to the United States but wants to know if, in view of the action taken by the Senate, China will remain dormant at the risk of eventually losing Shantung to the Japanese.

Watch Peking, Advises Republican Daily News

The Republican Daily News:

"Chinese today join in general rejoicing upon the receipt of the news that the United States has adopted a reservation on the Shantung clause in the treaty of peace. In the midst of rejoicing, we are mindful of this historic development and grateful to our sister Republic.

"But let me ask our fellow patriots this question: 'What are you going to do after this rejoicing?' Are you going to remain dormant? Then Shantung will remain out of the possession of China. Not only that, we shall disappoint the United States Senate, which has given our country this moral support and unprecedented assistance. We shall be unfit to deserve the friendship of the United States.

"The important thing for us to do at present is to watch the Peking Government and stop it from directly dealing with the Tokio Government over the Shantung question. However, this is only a temporary measure. Our ultimate solution lies with the awakening to the spirit of nationalism as individuals and devise means for the salvation of China."

Justice Must Reign Says Eastern Times

The Eastern Times:

"In the long run, nothing can be accomplished without justice. The reservation to the Peace Treaty by the United States Senate is a concrete proof of this principle.

"The most significant among the three reservations adopted by the United States Senate is that pertaining to the Shantung question. It is the outcome of America's disappointment at the peace table. Indeed the outcome of the peace treaty was quite contrary to the expectations of the United States when she joined as a belligerent and when she finally consented to talk peace.

"The proverb says 'If the little drops of water are allowed to fall, it will soon form a huge river.' The treatment accorded to Shantung at the peace table was the beginning of a long string of acts of injustice.

"Many cases of injustice are done on account of circumstantial difficulties but in the end justice must reign supreme. The encroachment upon a weaker nation therefore is just as hard as an encroachment upon a strong nation. Only the oppressed in one case obtain vengeance earlier than the other."

FRENCH ELECTION RESULTS STATED

Returns Show Socialists Are Defeated Everywhere But In The North

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 17.—The election returns so far received demonstrate that the Socialists have been beaten everywhere except in the north. They have been crushingly defeated in their stronghold of the suburbs of Paris, their rout being attributed to their extreme Bolshevism. The ex-Colonial Governor, M. Augagneur, is among the defeated candidates.

Paris, November 16.—Prominent men elected include the ex-Premier, M. Briand, General de Castelnau, and the ex-Minister for the devastated Regions, M. Lebrun, who recently resigned in consequence of M. Clemenceau's remarks in his electoral speech condemning M. Lebrun's non-renunciation of the socialists who had favored an early peace with Germany. M. Renoult, leader of the Radicals was elected while M. Longuet, leader of the Bolshevists was badly defeated. Votes are still being counted but the Republicans are apparently winning handsomely. It is the biggest poll on record.

Brussels, November 17.—The election returns to hand show that the Socialists have gained twenty-three seats, fifteen from the Catholics and eight from the liberals but the Catholics remain in a majority in Parliament.

Koo Notifies Peking Of League Proposal To Ban Bolsheviki

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 17.—The Peking Government has received a cable from Wellington Koo, who is now in charge of the affairs of the Chinese Delegation at Paris, stating that, in view of the opening of the League of Nations Conference in the near future, a commission of delegates representing 13 states has drawn up for submission to the League the following proposals for dealing with the Bolshevists:

1. No Bolshevists shall be admitted into the Allied Countries.
2. Transportation by water shall be refused to all Bolshevists.
3. No arms and ammunition shall be sold to the Bolshevists.
4. No mail matter shall be sent to or received from regions under Bolshevist control.

Sunkiang Orphanage Opens New Home On Tenth Anniversary

Educators Principle Speakers At Double Celebration— Structure Cost $5200

(China Press Correspondence)

Sunkiang, Ku, November 20.—The tenth birthday of the Sungkiang Orphanage was celebrated yesterday. Our new home was formally opened and we had representatives of every class present at the exercises. Mr. Huang Yen-pei, vice-chairman of the Kiangsu Educational Association and Mr. Lok Kwe-liang, principal of the Amoy Middle and Normal School gave us very effective addresses. The first speaker stressed the need of industrial education so as to make as many of the population effective producers as possible. Mr. Lok spoke on the need of giving at least some degree of education to the poor of the land. The pupils of the Kiangsu Middle School number three came in a body. General Ho Feng-ling, the Commissioner of Defense at Shanghai sent his card by the hand of his representative.

The building is largely after the Chinese style. It contains five rooms and is two stories high with two ells. There are besides five rooms, one story high, wherein are the kitchen, bath house, dining room, etc. The contract price was $5,200. There is a nice reception room which will be furnished with Sungkiang-made furniture, the gift of a number of gentlemen. In this room, there are three large pictures, one being Mr. Tsu Siau-ngaug a former superintendent of this institution, who has been deceased for a number of years. One is Mr. Voong Zing-ngan who has made us a present of $3,000 and the other is Mr. S. K. Huang of the Han Yeh Ping Steel and Iron Company, who has made a gift of $1,050. Two beautiful gilt scrolls also decorate this room, the gift of our District Magistrate.

LAWYERS APPEAR AGAINST SPEEDER

Man Who Drove Motor Car At High Rate On Nanking Road Is Fined

Fine of $10 and promise of suspension or revocation of his license as a motor car driver in the event of a second offense, was the result yesterday of the appearance of Mr. S. Trevor Smith before Magistrate G. W. King in the British Police Court on a charge of improper driving on Nanking Road. Mr. Smith was complained against by one lawyer, who appeared as the chief witness, and was prosecuted by another.

Mr. W. A. C. Platt, barrister, made the complaint against Mr. Smith, saying that he observed him driving in Nanking Road, on November 15, at a rate of 25 miles an hour. Mr. K. E. Newman, former police legal advisor, appeared for the prosecution.

Mr. Smith admitted that he drove at the rate of 25 miles an hour and made no excuses, saying he believed the rate of speed to be too high. He explained that his violation of the speed limit, which the police have set at 15 miles an hour on some parts of Nanking Road and at from 8 to 12 miles an hour near the Bund, was due to his anxiety to reach his office after having made a late start.

The magistrate imposed the $10 fine and warned Mr. Smith that another violation would be followed by a recommendation from the Court to the Municipal Council for either the suspension or revocation of his driver's license.

Swiss Industries Suffer Losses Due To High Exchange

Dealers Are Unable To Sell Goods Abroad Or Compete With Other Countries

(American News Service)

Geneva, November 16.—Switzerland is suffering from an increase in her gold reserves and high exchange in her favor, according to financial writers. The Swiss exchange one hundred marks for fourteen francs and one hundred kroner for four francs, which is the highest in Europe. This is believed to be crippling Swiss industry in the European trade because of the exchange situation.

Neighboring nations because of the loss in exchange are refusing to buy Swiss goods but are trying to sell at prices with which the Swiss are unable to compete. Germany is said to be profiting from the opportunity offered.

The Swiss Government is seeking aid for home industries and is perplexed by the situation as are other governments. France, f example, and Italy because of change rates can buy from G many at about one-third the pr offered by America or England.

The Swiss Government recent asked bids for the construction a bridge across the River Aaar ne Berne and German firms offered complete the bridge at less th Swiss firms said they could buy t raw material. Financial con tions are considered by experts the new economic danger f Europe, especially as wages a the cost of living continue increase.

MONGOLS YIELD THEIR AUTONOMY

Decision Reached At Meeting At Urga Of Chinese And Council Of Ministers

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 20.—According to a despatch from Kalgan the question of Mongolia's autonomy was brought to a conclusion between the Mongolian Council of Ministers and the Chinese representatives at Urga on November 15.

The despatch says that the Living Buddha on November 10 received General Chen Yi and General Hsu Shih-tseng and stated that he did not see any reason for cancelling the autonomy of Mongolia.

Hsu Shih-tseng on November 14 posted troops along the road leading to the Hutukhtu's Palace, while Chen Yi visited the President of the Council of Ministers and asked for a definite answer regarding the autonomy question, adding that he expected a reply within 48 hours. This request was referred to the Hutukhtu who called a meeting of the Representative Assembly.

The Lower House favored demanding the withdrawal of the Chinese troops and if necessary the Mongols resorting to arms. The Upper House however counselled moderation, pointing out the futility of armed resistance.

On November 15 the Resident called on the President of the Council and received a petition to China to accept the subjection of Mongolia, which was not signed by the Hutukhtu.

It only remains for China to secure the abrogration of the Kiakhta treaty and provide funds to replenish the depleted Mongolian treasury, though it is rumored that a neighboring country will make a protest against the cancellation of Mongolia's autonomy.

Air Route To Open From Cape To Cairo

Surveying Has Been Finished And Chain Of Landing Places Established

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 17.—A report issued by General Sir Frederic Sykes, Controller-General of Civil Aviation, says that the Cairo-Karachi air route will shortly be available for civil traffic. The Cape to Cairo route has been surveyed and a chain of landing places established. The section lying within the Union of South Africa should shortly be ready for civil enterprise. A full reconnoissance of the route to India and Australia has been completed.

Civilian machines have flown 303,000 miles. Two pilots were killed and six injured. Ten passengers were injured. Only one passenger has been injured out of every 5,200 carried.

General Sykes adds that the formation of a commercial Company to take over the military airships is under consideration.

Activity Of Britain In Africa Discussed

Plan To Combat Tse-tse Fly And Disease It Carries Is Considered

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 17.—The Times in a leading article referring to Great Britain's enlarged responsibility for the future of Africa, says that Africa will require greater assistance to develop her resources and the outer world will have more need of her products. The ensuing changes the journal predicts will greatly increase the possible number of victims of tropical diseases of which sleeping sickness is the most dangerous.

The Times refers to the report of Lord Harcourt's committee on the subject published in 1914 and says that there must since have been many changes in the distribution of the tse-tse fly and the disease it carries. Therefore, says the journal, it will be most valuable if a competent authority were now to traverse the whole region from the west coast to Uganda and down by Nyasaland to Rhodesia, to collect the facts and arrange them in correlation to research and preventive measures.

The Times understands that Surgeon General Sir David Bruce would be ready to undertake such a task and urges the Colonial Office to take the necessary steps.

Surgeon-General Sir David Bruce went to Uganda as Director of the Royal Society's Commission for the Investigation of Sleeping Sickness in 1903, and again in 1908-10. In 1911-14 he was in Nyasaland as Director of the Royal Society's Commission to investigate the connection, if any, between the wild animals and human and stock diseases. From 1914-1918 Sir David Bruce was Commandant of the R. A. M. College.

'Hearts Of The World'

"Hearts of the World," a Griffith masterpiece, is to be produced at the Victoria Theater, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, November 25, 26 and 27. The performances will begin at 9:15 o'clock sharp.

This film play is described as the "supreme triumph" of the man acknowledged to be the leader of direction of spectacular motion picture productions. It is a combination of marvelous photography and fine acting.

Visualising the necessity for the cessation of armed strife it is declared to be a powerful argument for the League of Nations. It is not a war story but is described as being "The Sweetest Love Story Ever Told."

Wood Ration Planned For City Of Vienna

(American News Service)

Vienna, November 14.—The city authorities have decided to seize and ration wood same as coal. The official price now standing at thirty-seven times the pre-war coast. Another increase in gas and electric rates has been announced. Children's complimentary milk and sugar rations have been abolished because the supplies are exhausted.

Capital Of Bank Is To Be Doubled

Banque Industrielle de Chine Announces Meeting For November 28

Following the recent announcement made by the Banque Industrielle de Chine that the shares of that Bank were now officially quoted and dealt in at the Paris Bourse, the Bank announced yesterday that, according to telegraphic advice from Paris, the latest quotation for the Bank's fully paid-up shares (500 Francs) was Francs 935.

The Banque Industrielle de Chine informs us at the same time that with regard to the recent augmentation of the bank's capital from 45,000,000 to 75,000,000 Francs all the new capital was promptly subscribed by the existing shareholders, so that no allotment could then be made to the general public.

In view of the recent opening of many new branches and especially in consideration of the fact that the bank's business in China and Indo-China is expending rapidly, the board of directors has decided to immediately increase the bank's capital to double its present size.

With this object in view an extraordinary meeting of the bank's shareholders has been called, to take place at Paris on November 28, 1919. At this meeting the directors will propose to increase the capital of the bank from 75,000,000 to 150,000,000 of francs.

It is anticipated that the new shares will be issued at a premium of about 165 francs, which would mean francs 665 for the fully paid-up shares or Francs 415 for the half paid-up shares.

It is the directors' intention to reserve a fair proportion of the proposed new issue for its clients and the general public in China and Indo-China.

'Vanity Fair'

Those who have not yet had an opportunity to see "Vanity Fair" should not miss the performance tonight. There will be an entire change of program; and apart from this, the performance will be of particular interest to people from the Land of the Thistle. Tomorrow will be "Scotch night" and "Heatherland" will be featured as a finale, introducing airs and dances from Caledonia.

This program will be repeated on Monday night the next change will be Tuesday next.

There will be a matinee today.

Interest Of Cotton Men Centers On Crop In U.S.

Views Differ On Whether Acreage Next Year Will Show Increase Or Decrease

(Reuter's Service)

New York, October 24.—Interest in next year's cotton crop has shown itself in many quarters and opinions differ as to whether the acreage will be larger or smaller than the last. Some point out that farmers, having learned from war experience that other crops are very profitable and not subject to weevil troubles, will diversify next season more than ever. Present high prices on the other hand, may induce a greater acreage than before, although the farmer's experience this year has been discouraging for the price matters little to him if he only made ten bales where he expected to make a hundred, among cotton interests who have gathered at the convention in New Orleans there is a belief that no very large planting of cotton may be looked for next Spring.

In the cotton goods market there has been increasing strength and a disposition to make engagements well ahead into next year. The demand for export also continues in excess of the supplies available, with China in the domestic market seeking piece goods, and paying the highest prices on record. At Boston business has been accepted for deliveries running to April, 1920 on cotton yarns, and some weavers have tried to place orders for all they will consume during the first six months of next year.

PRICES DIFFER

Figures prepared by a member of the United States Department of Agriculture show a considerable difference between what mills pay for their cotton and what the farmer receives. A comparison of all coinciding sales as to grade, staple and date, selected from the sale of approximately 200,000 bales sold in the states of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, showed that mills paid an average of 232 points, or $11.60 per bale, more than the average price received by the farmer on the same date for cotton of the same grade and staple. The report advocates a system whereby mills may buy direct from the farmer.

The relative weakness of futures in the New York cotton market, compare with the price of spots in the South, is barely accounted for by the heavy hedge selling that has been going on here for some time past, much of this has been by Japanese interests who have sold May against recent spot purchases on a scale up. The Japanese interest is rapidly becoming a more important factor in the cotton trade. A few years ago there were only one or two concerns in the market, but today there are several big Japanese firms trading, and at times Japanese interests are operating on both sides of the market. In this connection an item of considerable interest is the shipment from Savannah this week of 7,900 bales to Japan direct; the first cargo to be so shipped from that port since 1914. The company operating this vessel says it expects to put 50,000 or more tons of shipping into operation between Japanese ports and the South Atlantic ports of the United States

SILK SHIPMENTS

The figures at hand already show larger imports of silk from Japan than last year, and the reports show small stocks in first hands compared with a year ago. Silk consumption here is certain to be very large for some time owing to the many new uses for it, and the extravagance shown by many persons who would not normally use silk.

The Government closed a deal this week with civilian merchants to take over all the cartridge silk left over from the war, and totaling about 17,000,000 yards in all. It is to be finished for a variety of uses, and the claim is made that many of the uses of the new goods will become permanent fixtures in the trade. The first purchase involves $10,000,000, and it is understood that the Government will receive 50 percent of the profits resulting from merchandising the finished products, in addition to a fixed price for the raw goods.

Third Y.M.C.A. Conference In Progress At Hangchow

The third conference of the employed officers of the Young Men's Christian Associations of China is now in session at Hangchow. The opening meeting was held on the evening of November 19 and the conference is scheduled to conclude on Thursday evening next. The sessions are being held in the new building of the Hangchow Young Men's Christian Association which will soon be ready for dedication. The delegates are comfortably located at the Ching Tai hotel near the West Lake.

Secretaries and physical directors representing 28 city associations and 159 student organisations are present. There are in all 158 present of whom two-thirds are Chinese and one-third foreign. These come from cities widely distributed, from Mukden in the North to Canton in the south and Yunnanfu and Chengtu in the West. While most of the foreign secretaries are American, there are also representatives from Canada, Switzerland and Denmark.

Dr. F. H. Burt, President of the Y.M.C.A. College, of Chicago, and Mrs. Burt are guests of honor at the conference.

THEIR THIRD MEETING

This is the third meeting of the employed officers, the first having been held in Shanghai in 1912, and the second in 1915. During the past four years the number of secretaries employed in the Young Men's Christian Associations of China has multiplied by about three times. There is at present a total of 240 in all,, one-third being foreign.

The purpose of the meeting is for fellowship, deepening of the spiritual life, a review and study of the Association field and work. Seven commissions have been working for sometime on various phases of Association work in order to report at this gathering.

These commissions cover the following subjects: (1) Religious work, (2) Association and the Community, (3) Student Work, (4) Boys' Work, (5) Training of Secretaries, (6) Educational Work, (7) Membership Work. A large part of the time of the conference will be taken in the discussion of the reports of the commissions above named. The conference is not legislative.

The deliberations and findings are not binding upon the Association's movement. However, as a result of these discussions, certain recommendations may be brought to the attention of the respective boards of directors of the several associations or may be submitted to the National Convention of the Association to be held next spring.

ANALYSE SITUATION

At the first session of the conference the opening address was given by Mr. David Z. T. Yui, General Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Associations of China, also Chairman of the Employed Officers Association. He reviewed the progress of the past four years and analysed the situation that now confronts the Association in its work for young men.

He emphasised the Association as an organisation working to bring the message of Christianity to young men and to co-operate with the Church in enlisting young men in its service and program. A cablegram of greeting was sent to the International Convention of the Young Men's Christian Association of Canada and the United States in session at Detroit, Michigan November 19-23.

Future events on the program include receptions by the officials and local churches and missionary community of Hangchow.

Tientsin Society In Vigorous War On Drug Dealers

Directs Campaign Against Morphine, Opium Traffic In Chihli

In spite of the lack of official co-operation, the Anti-Narcotic Society of Tientsin is conducting a rigorous campaign against the opium and morphine traffic in the Province of Chihli. A record is completed of Japanese morphine dealers in Chihli. The society has issued a circular to the branches to report on the number of Japanese drug stores and the scale of their trade in morphine, giving their names and addresses.

The quarterly report of the society, a copy of which has just been received, regrets the inactivity of teh society on accbunt of the patriotic movement in the North as well as the failure of the Police Commissioner, General Yang Yi-teh, to suppress drug dealers. He had even overlooked a number of letters directly addressed to him, according to the report.

The Tientsin society now has a membership of 515 and has 119 branches throughout the province. The general secretary of the society is Mr. Y. S. Djang.

UPHEAVAL SEEMS TO BE IMMINENT THROUGH AUSTRIA

Unlikely Present Government Will Be Able To Retain Its Powers

ROYALISTS GAIN STRENGTH

Union With Germany Is Being Proposed—Revolution Is Expected

(American News Service)

Berne, November 14.—Serious events seem imminent in Austria, according to advices here. Political discontent and economic distress have aroused the people of Vienna over night. It is unlikely that the present government will be able to retain its power and the Republic is likely to fall to princes. Several groups are declaring for a union with Germany.

It is asserted that the Austrian army will be unable to prevent a new revolution as officers for some time have been gradually replaced with Socialists.

Speeches made yesterday celebrating the Republic's anniversary which were published tonight after twenty-four hours of silence were decidedly gloomy, and foreboding present and future economic conditions.

A note of fusion with Germany was sounded by the Burgomaster of Otatz, who said:

"German and Austrian workmen will never abate their demands for a union with Germany."

In Vienna, Leo Deutsch, brother of the Minister of War, addressed the Volkewoh warning them of the danger of a counter revolution and saying that decisive action would result not many weeks distant.

A Budapest despatch to Abend list seven nominees for the Hungarian throne. The Legitimists are divided into two groups, one for the return of Carl Hapsburg and the second for Prince Otto. The nationalists are divided in support of Archduke Joseph and Archduke Albrecht, while another group recognising the Allies mandate against the Hapsburgs advance Crown Prince Rumanis, Duke of Teck and Duke Rabrussi.

Post Office Space Taxed By Holiday Mail For States

Christmas mail for America, stacked ceiling high, filled most of the storage space of the U.S. Post Office yesterday until the order was given to deliver 555 sacks of it to the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services baggage lighter. That will enable the steamship company to handle the situation more easily today. At the same time it gave space for another heavy load of parcels expected this morning before the closing hour.

The Empress of Japan which leaves today is the chief Christmas boat of the season, arriving in America just in time for easy delivery before December 25. Parcels and registered matter for this vessel will be received at the American Post Office until 1 p.m. today, letter mail until 2.

PITTSBURG STEEL CAR WORKS WILL OPEN CITY OFFICE

F. N. Hoffstot, Wealthy Head Of Big Corporation, Here On Brief Visit

Mr. F. N. Hoffstot, multi-millionaire of Pittsburg, president of the Pressed Steel Car Company and subsidiary corporations, together with Mrs. Hoffstot, his secretary, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Peterson of Wheeling, West Virginia, and Mr. Henry R. Cooper, general manager of the Far Eastern district of the concern, are in Shanghai for a few days at the Astor House. Most of the party leave today to continue their tour south. Mr. Cooper will remain here to open the Far Eastern office.

During the war the Pressed Steel Car Company purchased the German concern known as the Koppel Industrial Car and Equipment Company. It was the first sale made by the U. S. Allen Property Custodian. The Koppel Company were specialists in industrial railway equipment and had a large business throughout the East. To retain that business and increase it is largely the aim of the new Shanghai office.

The Pressed Steel Car Company is the largest of its kind in America. It has a daily capacity of 200 steel cars a day which would make a train two miles long. The Koppel plant alone covered 640 acres when it was purchased but now it is being greatly enlarged. The concern owns and operates its own coal mines and malleable iron works. Of these latter it has the second largest in the world.

Mr. Cooper who will head the Shanghai office is an experienced man in the East, having been a resident for twenty years in Manila. He was founder of the Cooper Company which he left in 1917.

Petition for an injunction was filed yesterday with the Clerk of the U. S. Court for China relative to the estate of the late Amy Bell. Alexander U. Belyea, the petitioner and attorney for his wife, Ada Belyea, asks an order restraining the executors of the estate from selling certain real estate. Instead, he petitions the Court to appoint appraisers to determine its value and then to properly advertise it before the real estate is sold. His wife, he avers, is a beneficiary and will receive a share when this property is sold. The executors, he alleges, are considering accepting an offer of Tls. 40,000, which in his opinion is far less than the proper value of the property.

Chinese Are Assailed In Japanese Editorial

Propagandist Charges Money Alone Cements U. S. And This Nation

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 17.—The Tsinan Jih Pao, the leading Japanese-owned and edited vernacular daily in Tsinanfu, says as follows in a continuation of its recent series of editorial attacks against America's financial policy in China:

"Most Chinese fear foreigners, but they sometimes welcome them. The cause of their fear is the power of the foreigners, and the reason for their welcome is the foreigners' wealth. This is likewise true in the case of the Government. The arrival of Hsu Shi-yuan and the American capitalists is looked upon somewhat as might be the advent of the God of Money, who will, the Chinese and their Government think, relieve the present financial difficulties.

"In my humble opinion, however, this God will come only to rob China of her rights and privileges in return for what he gives. The so-called joint banks and companies to develop Chinese resources are merely a means to attain that end. And the people who welcome them intend to have their share of the spoils taken from their fellow-countrymen."

Malaysian Village Sacked By Bandits

From the Times of Malaya of October 30:

Yet another page of robbery, violence, and murder has been added to the long tale of crime in Kinta by the hold-up of the village of Pulai, about six miles from Ipoh, in the early hours of October 24.

A gang of robbers, supposed to have numbered twenty armed Chinamen, descended from the hills on October 23 and swooped down on the unsuspecting village of Pulai about the hour of midnight. Entering the sleeping village from the end opposite to the police station they encountered two policemen, one of whom, a Sikh, they promptly shot dead.

Having cut the telephone wires the robbers, unmolested by the terrified inhabitants, ransacked eleven shops.

In the course of the robbery a Chinese towkay had the misfortune to receive a wound in the thigh but the circumstances relating to the attack are still unknown.

News of the raid reached Ipoh about 3.30 a.m. on October 24 and though the details are still obscure it is understood that special parties have been sent in pursuit of the robbers, who retired to the hills.

Raft Washed Ashore, Corpse Is Passenger

The South China Morning Post of November 12 says:

A cable has been received in the Colony stating that the Governor of Formosa reports that a wooden raft marked "Stockholm 45," measuring about 12 by 9, and 9 inches high, carrying one European corpse and possibly emanating from the s.s. Peking, was washed ashore at the Pescadores on October 24. A request is made for identification proofs to be forwarded to Shanghai.

Governor Harrison Entertains Frawley

From the Manila Bulletin of November 6:

Governor General and Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison gave a luncheon party yesterday at the Malacanan, with T. Daniel Frawley and the members of his company as guests of honor. Among other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Bopp, Dr. and Mrs. Dade, Mrs. M. L. Stewart, Miss Daulton, Miss Virginia Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. Rockwell, and Senate President Manuel L. Quezon.

Nippon Yusen Kaisha Pays Huge Dividend

The Japan Advertiser of Tokio under date of November 9, says:

A dividend of 100 percent is to be paid by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha for the business term just ended. This is the highest rate ever paid by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha or by another company in this country except a certain narikin company in Kobe which paid 500 percent during the war boom.

The N.Y.K. dividend for the previous term was 50 percent, consisting of 10 percent ordinary dividends and 40 percent as extra dividends. The increase of 50 percent in the dividends for the past term is not due to an increase in the company's profits. On the contrary, the company was adversely affected by the shipping slump in the earlier months of the year. But the management has decided to pay an ordinary dividend of 10 percent and an extra dividend of 40 percent, as in the preceding term. In addition, a special dividend of 50 percent is to be paid. This dividend is to be paid out of a special reserve fund, the disposal of which has been under discussion for some time past.

Police Find Opium On Macao Steamer

The South China Post (Hongkong) of November 15 says:

Before Mr. R. O. Hutchison yesterday Detective Sergeant Wills applied for an order to confiscate the 1,550 taels of prepared opium which he seized in the engine room of the Macao steamer Su An on the evening of the 7th. There were no claimants and Mr. Hutchison granted the application.

A Chinese arrested on the Hau Tak Wharf on Thursday in possession of 77 taels of prepared non-Government opium was brought before Mr. Hutchison and fined $1,000 or in default three months' hard labor. The drug was discovered in a basket.

Another Chinese, recently arrived from Singapore, was fined $500 for having 50 taels of opium dross in his custody.

Chief Revenue Inspector Wildin prosecuted a boatman and his wife for a similar offense. They had 194 taels of prepared opium.

Man-Eating Tigers On Rampage In Malay

From the Straits Echo of Penang, F. M. S., November 6:

That tigers have been playing havoc in Kuala Langate and other adjacent districts is well known to all the inhabitants there. Towkay Goh Hock Huat, of Klang, was in Batu Morib, on Saturday morning, when he was informed that several man-eaters have been frequenting his estate there, New Brighton Estate. Without loss of time, he caused a trap to be set, and a dog, safely protected, was put on as bait.

The Towkay's efforts were not in vain, for yesterday morning (Nov. 2) on visiting the trap, he found to his delight that one of the intruding brutes was in it. Having no paraphernalia to have the tiger brought home alive, it was decided to shoot the animal, and this was done.

It was a full sized male animal and was over six feet in length from head to tail. The Towkay took the carcase to Klang in his motor car and from there it was sent to Mr. Noordin, of Petaling, to be stuffed. Whilst in Klang hundreds of spectators crowded round the dead tiger and viewed it with interest.

Korean Monk Reported Killed In Monastery

The Seoul (Chosen) Press of November 16 reports: It is reported that a Korean monk of Pohyon Monastery, Yunghodong, Changpaikmyon, Kilju District, North Hamkyongdo, Im Saughyon by name, aged 28, suddenly disappeared on September 30. For about a month his disappearance was a mystery, and then it was discovered that he had been murdered and buried in the grounds of the monastery. Later on the police learned that the man was superior to his comrades in respect of scholarship and, placing too high an estimate upon himself, acted so wilfully that he made himself an object of resentment to the others on this account. Hong Seiil and five other monks determined to rid themselves of his presence by killing him, and on the night mentioned carried out their foul plot. The murderers have since been captured.

Demands Of Seamen Conceded By N.Y.K.

From the Tokio Advertiser of November 15:

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha has made arrangements to carry into effect the recent demands of the seamen in its employ, all which have been accepted by the management of the company.

The seamen's demands were based on the plea that the management had erroneously regarded officers and sailors as subordinate to the officials working on land. The most important demand of the seamen was that the Chief of Marine Affairs Department should be appointed from among the seamen and that the appointee should be given a seat on the directorate. The seamen also urged that a Seamen's Office should be established to deal with affairs relating to the seamen, abolishing the present system under which such affairs are managed by officials who have had no experience at sea. The company has taken steps to realise the wishes of the seamen except the giving of a seat on the directorate to a seaman, for which it is necessary to obtain the formal approval of a general meeting of share holders.

Government To Aid Chinese Workers In Russia

The Peking Daily News of November 18 says:

The Government recently received a telegram from Mr. Liu Chingjen giving a full report on the miserable conditions of the Chinese laborers in Russian territory. The telegram was read and discussed in a Cabinet meeting, and the Government has now telegraphed to Mr. Liu assuring him of the intention of sending relief at once to these sufferers. The provinces have been instructed to open subscriptions and to remit funds for the help of the poor Chinese sufferers in Russia, and at the same time the Government will negotiate with the Russian Legation in Peking to devise means to send these Chinese laborers back to China, where means shall be devised for their support.

Chinese Mohammedans Want To Visit Mecca

The Peking Leader of November 19 says:

The governor of Sinkiang has wired to the Government wishing to know whether, under the present changed conditions in Turkey it is possible for Chinese Mohammedans in Sinkiang, Kansu and Shensi provinces to proceed to the Mohammedan sacred city of Mecca to worship the Prophet every year as previously and that hundreds of Mohammedans are waiting for world from Peking to leave Chinese territory for Turkey-in-Asia. On account of the rumored existence of the Lang Iou Hui especially there is alleged foreign participation in it, the Central Government is very careful about the movements of Mohammedans so that the Government has wired to Sinkiang that until the Turkish question is completely settled by the Supreme Council in Paris, it is unsafe for Chinese Mohammedans to proceed to any part of the Ottoman Empire.

Symbol Representative Of All British Possessions Planned In London

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 17.—The Empire Movement with which Lord Meath is associated has passed an unanimous resolution in favor of the preparation of an Imperial flag on which would be displayed the Union Jack with symbols representing the Dominions, Crown Colonies and India, and which would be flown next Empire Day on all places of worship, and public buildings in the United Kingdom and Ireland, and the British Empire, as a token of humble thanksgiving to the Almighty for the preservation of the Empire.

It was also resolved to approach the Prime Ministers of the United Kingdom and the Dominions with a view to securing the observance of May 24 (Empire Day) as a day of thanksgiving and prayer.

REPORT IS MADE ON DARDANELLES

Held That Difficulties Of Gallipoli Expedition Were Underestimated

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 17.—The final report of the Dardanelles Commission has been issued.

The Commission thinks that insufficient consideration was given to carrying out successfully the necessary measures in connection with the Gallipoli expedition, and that the difficulties were underestimated.

An essential condition which was not fulfilled was that the Government should have concentrated its efforts upon the enterprise with the resources then available and should have limited the expenditure in men and material in the Western war threater.

The Commission says that the Secretary of State for War should have assured that the Chief of the Imperial General Staff, General Sir James Wolfe-Murray should have studied the conditions of the military attack and the preparation of the general plan.

The Commissioners pay a tribute to General Sir Ian Hamilton's gallantry, energy and determination in the extreme difficulty of his task, especially as the home authorities at first misconceived the nature and duration of the operations, but they state that it would have been well if in the light of events, Sir Ian Hamilton had examined the situation disclosed by the first landings in a more critical spirit and had submitted a comprehensive statement regarding the advisability of a continuance of the operations.

The Commissioners think that after Lord Kitchener had confirmed General Sir Charles Monro's advice, the decision to evacuate Gallipoli should have been immediately taken.

BRITISH RAILWAY BOARD PROPOSED

Action Taken By Government After General Review Of Labor Situation

(Reuter's Service)

London, November 17.—The railwaymen's leader, Mr. J. H. Thomas, speaking at Bristol said that since the railway strike the whole situation had been reviewed with the Government. He hoped that the latter's offer to establish a Joint Board for the railways composed of five general managers and five representatives of locomotive men and the National Union of Railwaymen would be adopted. The board would conduct all negotiations in connection with conditions of service.

Recognising that the public ought to be considered, in the event of the failure of these negotiations, any dispute would be referred to another body, comprising four of the men's representatives, four representatives from the railway companies and four from the public, one of whom would be a trade unionist not connected with the railways, while another would be a representative of the co-operative movement.

Mr. Thomas added that local machinery for dealing with local questions would also be established. Three railwaymen would join the railway executive with co-equal powers to the general managers.

CHARGE AIMED AT U.S. SHIP BOARD

British Delegation At Paris Says America Is Holding Former German Boats

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 17.—The Supreme Council is discussing the status and ultimate destination of German ships, including the Imperator, aggregating 170,000 tons.

The British delegation claimed that the action of the United States Shipping Board was a violation of the Supreme Council's agreement that the ships should be returned to Great Britain as soon as the transportation of American troops had been completed.

The delegation pointed out that England was crowded with Dominions men who were eager to return to their homes in all parts of the world, but who were delayed because America was holding the German ships.

Sox In Remarkable Rally Take Sixth Game Of Series

Pound Dutch Reuther Out Of Box And Beat Reds, 5 to 4

By Sheer Gameness Lift Themselves From Apparent Defeat To Victory, And Make Bantam Pitcher Kerr Hero

Cincinnati, Ohio, October 7.—When almost certain defeat stared the White Sox in the face at Redland Field this afternoon they rose in their anger and, in a scrappy uphill rally, thumped Walter Ruether out of the box in the sixth inning and deadlocked the score. In the tenth the Sox crashed into the pitching of Jimmy Ring, Chick Gandil cracking out the single which sent Buck Weaver over the plate with the run which gave the sixth game of the world's series to Chicago by a score of 5 to 4.

The Sox are dying hard. They played loose, ragged baseball this afternoon, but the intent punch which had been hidden in the other games suddenly came to the surface, and by sheer gameness and fight they overcame all their disastrous shortcomings and completely spoiled the plans of the Cincinnati fans to paint the town red tonight. All Redland was so all-fired sure that Moran's men would win this afternoon and nail the championship flag to the pole that they were betting 10 to 7 that Cincinnati would clean up the big show this afternoon.

With Garry Herrmann's ball yard jammed with the greatest gathering which ever dropped clinking coins into his coffers, with home fans gloating over the impending joy party, the sleeping bats of the Sox came to life and the faces of more than 33,000 surprised fans wore expressions of pain as they saw two of their pitching heroes, Ruether and Ring, totter and fall before the assault of the Chicago sluggers. The Reds cracked, not alarmingly it is true, but nevertheless the Sox made the discovery that the Reds can be beaten even if they do have to carry the fight to extra innings.

GAME POORLY PLAYED

Today's crowd paid more than $101,000 to see the game, but you could see lots of better-played games on a bush league park for two bits. The Reds' infield slipped around at times as if it was on roller skates. Duncan and Kopf got foolishly confused on Buck Weaver's easy fly in short left in the sixth, and while they stood around, like a couple of loafers, arguing about it, the ball dropped safely for a two-bagger. That started the Reds on the chute, and when they quit sapping they were down at the bottom of the long slide, wallowing in defeat. The crowd's estimation of little Dick Kerr, the pitching bantam of the Sox, went up and down like the mercury in a thermometer this afternoon. The Reds hammered Dick's pitching for eleven hits, but they could not make a dent in his courage.

Just at a time when the Sox were making the Reds bend to their will Kerr, while on the base lines, committed a ludicrous piece of baserunning which will go down in baseball lore along with Fred Merkle's failure to touch second and Fred Snodgrass's $30,000 muff. Kerr's mistake was in trying to run down to second when Ray Schalk was occupying that sack, with an indisputable lease on the property. Little Dick's bonehead achievement came in the fifth inning, when the Reds were leading by a score of 4 to 1. The Sox had Ruether on the run and had the whole Moran works missing fire. In this inning Ruether had walked Risberg and Schalk, and Kerr filled the bases by spinning a neat little hit down through shortstop. John Collins lifted a fly to short center, but Roush was in so close that Risberg did not attempt to score. Eddie Collins hoisted a sacrifice fly to Roush, and this time Risberg galloped over the plate with the Sox first run.

Kerr acted as if he was the victim of a sleeping powder. As soon as Roush caught the ball little Dick dug his heels into the ground and started for second. Schalk, who was on the base, yelled and waved his arms frantically for him to go back, but Kerr wasn't to be stopped. He was going to get to second base or know why. Roush threw the ball over to Groh at third to head off Schalk, and when Heinie saw Kerr he suppressed a laugh and went over and touched the pitcher for the third out. You'd imagine that a play of that kind would be enough to send any ball club straight up into the air, but not so with the Sox. They celebrated Kerr's bone play by coming back in the sixth harder than ever, and the first thing Dutch Ruether knew was that his hale had been knocked clean off his head.

All these things made the game more interesting. There was so much hitting, good playing, and bad playing that the combination furnished a whole lot more amusement to the crowd than most of these world's series games in which hits and runs are as scarce as rooms in Cincinnati's hotels. Redland isn't disheartened by any means. The fans expect the Reds to beat the Sox in the game which will be played here tomorrow and thereby wind up the series. Then the fans will celebrate in the manner which such a momentous achievement deserves.

CHICAGO FANS HOPEFUL

White Sox fans took their last whirl with the goddess of fortune this afternoon and those of them who were not dead broke took the short end of the 10 to 7 bets which the Redland rooters were offering. These same fans, who have been through so many trials and tribulations in backing the Sox in this series, now have a hunch that the Sox will win tomorrow and that the traveling baseball hippodrome will have to go back to Chicago again.

You can't beat Chicago fans for optimism. Why they are so optimistic that many of them have taken the rest of the week off, so that they will be sure to see all the games which they expect will be played before it is over. To hear them talk; you would think that the series was tied instead of the Reds leading at four games to two games.

The Reds went at the Sox with the same confidence as in the other games. In the first with two down, Groh pummelled a two-bagger to right. Roush sent a single bouncing through Risberg, and when Risberg grabbed the ball he made a smart play and whipped the ball over to Weaver who tagged Heinie Groh out after Heinie had overran third. This was one of the first instances in the series where the Sox have outguessed the Moran troupe. In the second Risberg's fumble put Duncan on third. Kopf walked and Neale rolled to Kerr who threw to Weaver, forcing Duncan. Rariden forced Neale at second and Kopf was on third. Ruether was up but that didn't disturb Kerr. The slugging pitcher rolled to Dick, who threw him out at first.

After what happened in the third, rejoicing Cincinnati fans took it for granted that the game was won and the series was over. Rath went out in this chapter, E. Collins to Gandil. Daubert chopped a single to right and, believe it or not, Jake stole second base. Eddie Collins thought he had Jake nailed dead to rights and said as much to Umpire Dick Nallin. Dick had ideas of his own about it and Eddie's forensic talent carried no weight. Groh fanned and the Woodland bards yelled for the first time during the game.

DUNCAN'S TIMELY DOUBLE

Kerr hit Roush, and Pat Duncan made himself more solid than ever with the fans when he lashed a double to right center which sent Daubert and Roush home, amid the uproar of the populace. Kopf poled a long fly to center, which Hap Felsch got on the run.

The Reds got two more in the fourth, and the Redland fans laid aside their joy for a moment to feel sorry for the Sox. Neale, the first man up, whaled a three-bager to right. The Sox maintained that he didn't touch second, but Umpire Ernie Quigley was sure he saw Neale's No. 11 touch the pillow. After Rariden was tossed out by Eddie Collins, Ruether sliced a double, which hugged the left-field foul line and then tumbled over. This jolt sent Neale home. Rath rolled a bouncer at Risberg, and the Swede pegged it at Weaver to get Ruether going to third. Risberg's aim was bad, and the ball hit Ruether and rolled over into foul territory. Ruether scored on the misplay.

For the $101,000 crowd it was all over but the banquet which is to be given by the Board of Trade or the Chamber of Commerce. Moran's players were planning about what trains they would take home with their world's series spoils. Many of them have already picked out the collection of silk shirts which they are going to buy. The diamond peddlers are already camping on the trails of some of the others.

The Sox first showed signs of consciousness in the fifth, when Risberg scored on Eddie Collins's sacrifice fly, the play on which Dick Kerr tried to go down to second with the bag occupied by Schalk. Of course, that little affair spoiled the Sox chances then and they were mighty fortunate that more chances came along to wipe out Kerr's offense.

In the Reds' portion of the fifth with two out, Pat Duncan hoisted a high to deep center. Happy Felsh circled around under it, ran forward and backward, and finally lost it after getting all his hands but one on it. His judgment of this ball was something awfully sad, and the Sox seemed to be getting worse instead of better. After the Sox center fielder made this play it was suggested that his name ought to be "Hap Hazard," instead of Hap Felsch.

WEAVER STARTS RALLY

Weaver opened the sixth with two-bagger which was studded with little horse shoes. It was an easy ball to catch, and either Kopf or Duncan might have caught it easily. They insisted on having an argument about it and the poor ball, having nothing else to do, simply splashed onto a soft soft on the lawn.

At last Joe Jackson hit in a pinch and, with a single to center, he sent Weaver home. Hap Felsch was also on the job, much to everybody's surprise, and walloped a double to the fense between left and center, sending Jackson home. There was much commotion on the Reds' bench. Pat Moran waived Ruether aside and the hero of the opening game ambled to the bench with a sad expression on his face. The Ruether smile, which beams all over the front pages of the Cincinnati pink and green sheets, assumed the look of a man suffering from a jumping earache.

Jimmy Ring then came into the game. Gandil, the first of the Sox to face him, lofted to Daubert. As Kopf was flipping Risberg out at first Felsch went to third. Ray Schalk, the umpire killer, then punched a single to left and sent Felsch home with the run which tied the score. Schalk stole second and the inning ended when Kerr was thrown out at first by Groh.

The Sox gave indications of breaking up the deadlock in the first of the eighth. Jackson walked and Felsch skied to Neale. Gandil also got a pass, and Ring appeared to be slipping so badly that Moran sent Ray Fisher out to warm up. These were distressing moment for the $101,000 crowd. The fans squirmed in their seats and were painfully silent. Risberg hammered a terrific liner to center which looked good for at least three bases, and the Sox players jumped from their bench in an outbreak of glee. Eddie Roush then made another one of those catches which seemed impossible. He raced and nipped the ball close to the clover without falling over. He kept his feet and doubled up Joe Jackson, who by that time was hot-footing it home with what he had a perfect right to believe was the winning run.

The catch was just the same as placing the bottle of spirits of ammonia to the noses of dejected Redland fans. The Reds made a desperate effort to win the game in their half of the eighth, but the Sox did not fall apart, as everyone expected. Duncan hoisted a high foul fly close to the crowd, and Chick Gandil made good by preventing the ball from hitting a cop on the head.

KERR SLIGHTLY INJURED

Kopf jammed a red hot liner at Kerr which almost wrecked Dick's pitching fin. All the Sox players assembled a clinic at second base and rubbed Dick's hand back into action. Neale singled to left and Rariden got an infield hit because Kerr wasn't quite tall enough to reach the ball as it hopped over his roof. The danger was over when Ring forced Rariden at second.

Both teams behaved sensibly up to the tenth, when the Sox blossomed out into a winner. Buck Weaver opened the inning with a two-base slam which dropped out of everyone's reach in left center. Joe Jackson attempted to sacrifice but instead he bunted down the third base line and beat out the throw to first, Weaver going to third.

Felsch picked out a bad place for a strike out, but that's just what he did. Then came Chick Gandil. He leaned on one of Ring's choicest offerings, bumped it savagely and ft hopped out into center field for the single which sent Weaver home with the winning run.

The fans are wondering tonight who will pitch tomorrow for the Sox. It is believed that Gleason still has enough confidence in Eddie Cicotte to use him against the Reds and he refuses to believe that his star boxman is as bad a flinger as he appeared in his first defeat. The only other pitcher whom Gleason has available is Bill James. If the Kid believes that James could win he would probably send him in and save Cicotte for a desperate attempt to tie the series. Cicotte, however, will be used tomorrow, however, according to the chatter about the Sinton, where the players are stopping.

School Boxing Champions Contest In Final Matches

Trophies Are Awarded At Conclusion Of Excellent Program Of Bouts Between Young Athletes

Final bouts in the annual boxing championship at the Shanghai Public School For Boys were put on yesterday afternoon in the School Hall. The boys proved to be skillful in the art of boxing and thorough sportsmen. The entertainment was of the highest order and was fully appreciated by a considerable number of spectators.

Winners of the trophies are:

Lightweights.—Seimsen, champion, Edward Ezra trophy; Snyder, runner-up, Capt. P. Bennett trophy.

Featherweights.—Weill, champion, Carlton Cafe, Ltd., trophy.

Bantamweights. — Johansen; champion, E. H. Gilson trophy; Symington, runner-up, T. McKenna trophy.

Flyweights.—Nobleston Brothers, divided championship with an extra-round draw, C. E. Shepherd and F. Bridges trophies.

For a special four-round contest Cook was presented with the D. D. Drake trophy. Mr. Shepherd presented a special consolation trophy to E. Herzberg and the School presented a special consolation trophy to H. Herzberg. A special consolation trophy was also presented by a member of the school staff to Stanion.

REFEREE IS HONORED

After the presentation of the trophies had been made by Captain Llewellyn Jones, M. C., who acted as referee, R. Nobleston, the tiniest and one of the most enthusiastic boxers at the meeting, appeared on behalf of the school and in a neat speech presented Captain Jones with a token of the boys' appreciation of his aid.

Judges of the contests were Mr. E. H. Gilson and Mr. C. E. Shepherd. Captain P. W. Bennett was timekeeper and Mr. G. H. Parkes promoted the meeting and acted as master of ceremonies.

Acting Head Master, Mr. Ross, made a brief speech at the close of the program in which he expressed appreciation of the fact that so many of the parents and friends of the boys had shown interest in their games by being present and asked Captain Jones to present the trophies, at the same time giving them the benefit of his criticism of their boxing.

In response Captain Jones declared that in his long experience with boxing he had never seen better sporting spirit than that displayed by the boys at the Shanghai School and that he had never participated in a series of contests that he enjoyed so much as those just closed.

FLYWEIGHTS ARE STARS

Undoubtedly the star event of the afternoon was the match between the flyweights, the Nobleston Brothers. The little fellows were boxing every minute and at the end of the scheduled three rounds the judges were unable to decide which was the winner. An extra round was called for but failed to settle the uncertainty. It was decided that the match should be called a draw and that the contestants share the title of champion for the year.

The program opened with a special four-round contest between flyweights. Karanjia lost to Cook after having put up a game battle.

Johansen had the advantage of 14 pounds weight over Symington in the bantamweight championship and won easily.

Mislin lost to Weill in the featherweight championship. The first round was fast and the boys seemed to be evenly matched. But in the second Weill had a shade the best of it and won handily in the third.

Seimsen had a bye in the lightweight event and so boxed a two-round exhibition with Mr. Parkes.

As an added event the Herzberg twins, flyweights, boxed a fast three-round exhibition.

FOOTBALL MEN PRACTICE TODAY

Eleven To Meet Navy On Thanksgiving Day Plan Final Workouts

Football practice this afternoon at two o'clock.

All Americans who wish a chance in the lineup against the Navy eleven next Thursday are urged to be out today, tomorrow and Tuesday as these three days offer the last opportunities for practice sessions. The game will be Thursday afternoon at three o'clock.

The American Athletic Club eleven is slipping into shape and will be in excellent condition to meet the team composed of the best men on the Elcano and Wilmington.

A tentative lineup places Rodger, Gold, Wilhoit and Cooper in the backfield. Clair and Neprud on the ends; Pete Dorrance, Giauque and Marsden at tackle; Ashley and Chatom in the guard positions and Bradley as the pivot man. Hotchkiss, the Cascadilla quarter, will be unable to play and Cooper is to yell the signals.

Although races are scheduled this afternoon, the football men will be allowed to practice.

REVOLT FEARED IN TURKESTAN

Peking Alarmed By Notices Urging Mohammedans To Start Uprising

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 17.—The Central Government, alarmed by the reports that have been coming in from Kansu and Chinese Turkestan with regard to the circulation of inflammatory pamphlets inciting the Mohammedans to an uprising against the authority of Peking, has sent urgent messages to the provincial authorities to investigate the matter and report in full. A reply has now been received here from the Tuchun of Kansu, who states that the pamphlets in question are entitled "O Wei O" (Ourselves for Ourselves) and are signed by Ting Chao-chung and Ma Chen-lung. The book instigates the Mohammedans to establish an independent state of their own and gives as a reason for this the critical situation in China proper as a result of the war between the North and the South.

According to the Tuchun of Kansu the Lang Tou Hui, which is responsible for the circulation of the booklets, has its headquarters at Tsingningchow in Kansu Province, while there are branch offices at Hsianfu, Shensi, Taikan and Choukou in Honan, Kueihua in Suiyuan, Taianfu in Shantung, Tungchow, near Peking, Chungkiang in Szechuen, and other places in Chinese Turkestan and Yunnan. The pamphlets, according to the Tuchun's report, were printed by a foreign printing house in Peking, the owner of which is believed to be a Japanese.

Your correspondent understands that the Government has sent strict orders to the provincial authorities throughout the country to confiscate all of these pamphlets that they can find and to arrest all conspirators connected with this new Mohammedan movement. Investigations are likewise being made here with regard to the printing firm that is reported to have turned out the pamphlets. The last Mohammedan uprising lasted several years and cost nearly 10,000,000 lives; and the Government is doing all that lies in its power to prevent a repetition of it.

Americans In Paris Seek Contracts For Reconstruction Work

(American News Service)

Paris, November 15.—Carl Squiers and two other young Americans are hustling around Paris preparing to undertake a contract for the reconstruction of an area near where the Twenty-Seventh American division fought their last engagement. The work centers at LeRouvion and includes, Marovs, and villages in vicinity.

Squires and his friends are planning to do only the woodwork of doors, windows and floors while French contractors will do stone work, foundations and walls. Squires is busy finding machinery to convert lumber into outside wood trimmings.

The plan is an outgrowth of a scheme taken up by some young Americans while in Southern France. The lads have worked weeks on it with little sleep and if it is put over it will have great cause for pride as well as profit.

The main contracts are let to architects by the French government who in turn sublet the different sections of the contraction work. Lumber, materials and glass have been guaranteed the American lads and all they have to furnish is the labor and initiative.

Daughter Of Sultan Is Engaged To Wed

(American News Service)

Constantinople, November 17.—The engagement of the daughter of the Sultan, Princess Sabihas to Prince Pirouh, the favorite son of the Crown Prince, has been announced.

The Sultan on his way to church yesterday bowed smilingly to the people and received the compliments of American, French and English vistors. When asked if he was not afraid to show himself he said:

"Who would want to assassinate an old man."

Germans Defy Allies In Silesia Election

Vote Held To Violate Term. Of Armistice Will Be Declared Invalid

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, November 16.—Conference circles are concerned over the policy of the Germans in Silesia where they held the elections in defiance of the terms of the armistice.

The German Government will be notified of the invalidity of such elections. At the same time the political situation in Berlin arouses much suspicion. The pro-Kaiser and pro-Hindenburg demonstrations grow daily more aggressive all over Germany.

Harvard And Yale Eleven Play Today

W. H. Kirkpatrick.

Harvard and Yale meet at the Harvard Stadium in Cambridge, Mass., this afternoon. It is the first clash between the Crimson and the Bulldog in three years and is the classic of one of the greatest football seasons American colleges have experienced. Army training has made bigger and faster men for college teams and the class of football has far exceeded that which featured pre-war games.

W. H. Kirkpatrick, tackle of the 1919 Yale eleven, is a veteran of the great 1916 varsity. Kirkpa trick is expected to star in the big games for Yale this season.

Lancastrians At Dinner Observe End Of Big War

Members And Their Ladies Celebrate Armistice At Astor House

Lancastrians and their ladies and guests to the number of 140 held a dinner and dance at the Astor House last evening in commemoration of the signing of the armistice. The affair was celebrated in the large ball room and the dinner was arranged with the speakers' table at the center and smaller tables on either side. The president of the Association of Lancastrians in China, Mr. W. N. C. Allen, presided. The guest of honor was the British Consul-General, Mr. J. W. Jamieson.

The first toast of the evening was that proposed by the President, "to the Duke of Lancaster, his Majesty, the King." It was followed by a short address in which the president recalled to the guests the fact that it was exactly one year ago in the same room that they had met to celebrate the signing of the armistice.

FACING BOLSHEVISM

At that time, he said, they thought that they had made an end of the doctrine that might is right. "Since that time there has been some signing of peace treaties, but now we are faced with Bolshevism, that Bolshevism which is tearing unfortunate Russia asunder, and has spread its malign influence over all the nations, leading to unrest and strikes in every industry. In the settlement of these disputes it is still inculcating the doctrine that might is right.

"How otherwise can we account for one section of our wage earners endeavoring to starve the whole nation into submission so that they might the more easily and quickly obtain their demands. Such would not have been the action of the British workers 20 years ago.

FOLLOWING BLIND LEAD

"Nor can I believe that it is the action of the British workers of today. Rather do I think that they blindly followed the lead of paid agitators."

Consul-General Jamieson's response on behalf of the guests was in a lighter vein. Being a Scot, he proceeded to compare the merits of Lancashire with other parts of the world. He had been in Lancashire but six weeks in his life, he said, but from that experience he could testify that they are among the most hospitable to be found anywhere. Like the President's, his address was short. At 10:30 the tables were removed for dancing.

Chiu-Chin Railway Conference Subject

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, November 17.—Mr. W. F. Carey, President of the Siems-Carey Company, which is in charge of the Grand Canal Improvement Work and likewise has a contract with the Chinese Government for the construction of the Chiuchow-Chinchow Railway, will arrive in Peking tomorrow together with Messrs. Hsu En-yuan, Galen F. Stone and Wiggins. Mr. Carey is out here to take up with the Government matters connected with the building of the Chin-Chin Line, the construction of which was postponed by Peking for financial reasons. The duration of Mr. Carey's visit to China is not known here at present.

Hockey This Afternoon

The Harlequins Hockey team will meet the Portuguese in a friendly match on The Widows Monument ground at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon.

The Harlequins will be represented as follows:

G. O. Jackson, J. S. Agassiz, T. H. Brierley, T. F. Cobbs, I. A. Donnelly, W. S. Harvie, V. Linton, H. J. Faers, W. T. Bertenshaw (Capt.) H. Columbine, S. Ellis.

Referee: T. H. Hutchison.

In The Mixed Court

On a charge of watering milk, a Chinese dairyman with a licensed dairy on Ward Road was sentenced yesterday in the Mixed Court to $15 or two weeks in jail. He declared that the watering must have been done by a new assistant "who didn't know any better."

Sanitary Inspector Terrill testified that on November 7 he took a sample of the milk and it tested 15.4 percent of water. On November 15 he tested another sample and again it was about 15 percent diluted.

Amateur Sleuth Rounds Up Gang Of Pickpockets

Robber Apprehended By Youth Confesses And Reveals Companions' Names

Amateur detective ability of a tobacconist's apprentice yesterday resulted in the apprehension of a gang of pickpockets which has been operating extensively in Shanghai for some time.

The youth was sent from his master's establishment to the office of the Tobacco Products Company with a bonus order for $3. On his way the boy stopped before a local bank to watch the transfer to the institution of a number of bags of money that were being delivered from a conveyance. A crowd has gathered and a pickpocket robbed the boy of the order.

Believing that the thief would try to cash the order at once the boy hurried to the offices of the Tobacco Products Company and laid in wait for the culprit. Within an hour a coolie appeared and presented the order. He was arrested at once.

At the police station the pickpocket confessed the crime and named his associates in the gang, giving their addresses and enabling the authorities to round up all of the alleged offenders.

Why so Many Bills For New Clothes?

Isn't it because you haven't yet fully waked up to the effectiveness of MODERN DRY CLEANING?

Wanting new clothes every little while is a STATE OF MIND! It is a form of extravagance which sensible people are taking in HAND.

Garments are not really OLD until they show WEAR—and a well-cleaned suit, when pressed carefully into its original shape, looks quite as smart and substantial as the NEWEST thing in the wardrobe, if the wearer chooses to THINK so.

Get WEAR out of your last season's clothes! Call the wagon! The COST will be small—but the SATISFACTION will be BIG! Try it!

Sinn Fein Progresses With Nation-Builaing Job

Irish Parliament Establishes Consular Service And Big Sum Is Voted For Development Of Fisheries—Supplies Also Are Provided For The Encouragement Of Industries

BY SEUMAS MACMANUS

Oblivious of the Army of Occupation and the state of war which Ireland at present enjoys, Sinn Fein proceeds vigorously with its nation-building job. The Dail Eireann—the Irish Parliament—has voted respectable sums for the establishment of a Consular service abroad, by which Irish trade will be quickly developed. Also ten thousand pounds are voted for the development of the Irish fisheries, which for so long have been practically repressed. Supplies are voted, too, for the encouragement of Irish industries, for the re-afforestation of Ireland, for the establishment of a National Civil Service, and for the establishment of national arbitration courts.

BREEDS GOOD-FEELING

These courts will not only be the means of taking the administration of the law to a large extent out of the hands of the English government's law offices, but more important, the ill-feeling which is engendered by law courts everywhere will thereby be supplanted by the good-feeling which arbitration fosters.

A National Civil Service will be begun by getting hold of all offices that are in the gift of municipal and local authorities throughout the country. As for some generations past, the English and Scotch fishers were gathering the harvest of Irish fish, the new development scheme of Sinn Fein may be expected to divert into Ireland very many hundreds of thousands of pounds that hitherto had been flying from it.

Besides other benefits, the re-afforestation of Ireland will do much to change the Irish climate, doing away with a deal of the excess humidity which has been one of the greatest detriments to agriculture in Ireland. When we remember that in Ireland it rains on 300 days of the year, the need for dry laws will be acknowledged.

The consular service will not only find new markets but, of as great importance, will find direct markets for Irish products, which hitherto—in accordance with the wise English scheme—passed through England and the hands of English merchant middlemen, to whose skilful fingers stuck the greatest part of Irish trade profits.

LAND FOR THE LANDLESS

Another wise enterprise that is being launched by the Sinn Fein is a scheme for giving land to the landless. There are in the richer parts of Ireland vast tracts of land given up to fattening of bullocks where, instead, men should be nourishing.

The new plan is to establish a Land Mortgage Bank, subsidised by the Dail and supported, as it will be, by all the patriotic ones in the nation—a bank that will be the means of tenanting the vast untenanted tracts. It is purposed that all landless men desiring land who will put up 25 percent of the price of an allotment will have the other 75 percent advanced on mortgage by the new Land Mortgage Bank. This will be one of the most beneficient works to which Sinn Fein puts its hand—a work that will bring manifold blessing not merely to the new tenants, but far more to the nation at large.

To help finance the various projects, Sinn Fein is floating an Irish loan in Ireland—which will keep pace with the Irish loan that is being floated in America by President DeValera. It is true that the English Government, in a panic at the taking out of its hand these duties which itself always took good care not to do, has rushed to suppress the loan and prevent the good works being done. It has seized and suppressed newspapers that were criminally guilty of advertising the loan—and destroyed their plants.

But now, as always repression in Ireland has its one certain consequence. The popularity of the loan has taken a great bound. Men who at first felt it a strain upon them to invest fifty pounds, are now gladly finding a way to invest twice fifty. Popular as will be the loan among the exiled Irish, far greater is the enthusiasm for it amongst the home-grown. It is being a great and rapid success in Ireland.

TRADE WITH FRANCE

Meantime, as envoy from the Irish industrial development association, the Markuis MacSwiney (a Papal Marquis), has been to Paris for the purpose of arranging a direct trade between Ireland and France—and has met with great success. A Cociete Franco-Irlandaise has been formed for the good purpose.

The French merchants were keenly interested because Ireland can supply them direct with mineral, agricultural and industrial products, which they sorely need. And Ireland can purchase in return many French manufactured products for which they would have to pay much higher rates if got by the old prescribed route, that is via English ports.

The Marquis' work in Paris caused much French newspaper comment. Many articles appeared in the various Paris newspapers on Irish developments and direct trade between Ireland and France. Good feeling was fostered and a door opened.

Very shortly a line of trading steamers is expected to be plying between Dublin and a French port, with prospects of a direct passenger service from Ireland to France later. So, though Sinn Fein is supposed to be absorbed awaiting the work of its trigger-finger, the other hand is pretty busily plying the spade.

ADMIRALTY CHANGES OCCURED DURING WAR

New Departments Developed To Meet Extraordinary Demands Made On Navy

London, October 20.—Every American who has visited London has had pointed out to him, probably by an Englishman with a careless indifference that veils a reverence too deep to show on the surface, a squat old building with a gloomy entrance just off Trafalgar Square. It is called the Admiralty, but the word is also used as meaning the department of the navy, which has its home in that squat old building and in a large and comparatively modern building behind it.

The Admiralty discharges the functions that formerly appertained to the Lord High Admiral of England. That office, which recalls the spacious days of the beginning of Britain's sea-power has, in fact, been in commission since 1708. The "Commissioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral" are now known as the Lords of the Admiralty, and the First Lord is the Cabinet Minister responsible to Parliament for the Navy.

During the war the Admiralty has, like all other Departments of the Government, undergone changes and developments occasioned by the necessities of the times. The Naval Air Service, and the Board of Inventions and Research, are two of the most notable of these developments, from both of which very great advantage has been derived in the course of the mighty conflict, which from first to last depended more upon the efficiency of the British Fleet than upon any other single factor.

The Board of Admiralty is composed of service men and civilians. It is an interesting fact that nobody in England ever feels the same sort of dread of "militarism" in connection with the navy as is often felt in connection with the Army. The reason, it may be, is that the Navy is essentially the defensive service and a service rich with such traditions as Britons love.

ORDER TO MOVE ON BY POLICEMAN TO WOMAN STARTS ROW

Charges Preferred Against Officer Who Arrested Owner Of Bus

New York, October 10.—Mrs. Helen Seigmeister, of 66 Second Avenue, who owns a bus of the sightseeing variety plying between Coney Island and Times Square; her husband, Louis, who operates the bus, and at times descends to the sidewalk to invite passers-by to make the trip, and Patrolman Thomas Kelly of the West Forty-seventh Street Station were principals in an affair that thrilled the Sunday crowd on Broadway last night, and ended in almost stopping the session of the Night Court at West Fifty-seventh Street. It happened this way:

Siegmeister, so he told Lieutenant Younge, at the police station and Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan later, was on the sidewalk near Forty-sixth Street and Broadway appealing to pedestrians to try a ride to Coney Island in the bus. His wife was seated behind the wheel of the machine close by. Suddenly Kelly appeared.

"You'll have to quit that yelling and move on," said Kelly. Then, louder, as Louis failed to move, "Move on, I said, or I'll arrest you."

STRATEGIC RETREAT

Seigmeister moved, but it was merely a strategic retreat to draw near his wife and enlist her aid and counsel. Mrs. Seigmeister didn't hesitate to go to her husband's defense.

"What's the policeman saying to you, Louis?" she called out.

Her husband related the gist of his conversation with the policeman.

"Don't let him bluff you," she encouraged. "This is a public hack stand and we don't have to move an inch."

By this time Mrs. Seigmeister's words, which were not delivered sotto voice by any means, had drawn a crowd. Several hundred men and women stopped to hear the argument and to applaud the disputants.

"If you don't move," said Kelly, "I'll have to arrest you."

"You can't arrest him," said Mrs. Seigmeister. "I'm the owner of this machine, and I'm responsible."

"You'll do then," answered the patrolman, "Come along."

As Mrs. Seigmeister showed no eagerness to comply with the request Kelly mounted the steps of the bus and took hold of her shoulder.

POLICEMAN HOOTED

Here the sympathies of the crowd turned completely to the Seigmeisters. They began to hiss and groan at the policeman. A sailor jumped up behind Kelly, and, taking his arm, commanded him to let the woman alone. The crowd which included a number of sailors, surged a few steps toward the bus.

Kelly jumped from the steps, and, drawing his pistol, ordered the people around to clear out. Another patrolman, James Jennings appeared on the outskirts of the throng and sent in a call for the reserves. These reinforcements swung the battle around in favor of the police again, and Mrs. Seigmeister and her husband were taken to the police station. With them went the sightseeing bus, and in the bus travelled a hundred or more voluntary witnesses. Several hundred others went along on foot to see that justice was done.

In the station the Seigmeisters were charged with disorderly conduct. Outside the crowd hissed and groaned. The bus was left in charge of a volunteer chauffeur.

The crowd lingered until it was time for Mrs. Seigmeister and her husband to start for Night Court. As she got into the patrol wagon, she called to the people in the street:

"All of you who saw the affair come along to court and bear witness of how we were unjustly treated. The bus will bring you free of charge."

PRISONERS ENCOURAGED

Accordingly, as the patrol dashed along, it was followed as closely as possible by the big bus, packed with passengers who, every time they got near the van called out encouragement to the prisoners. Behind the bus were a dozen or more taxicabs, bearing the overflow of witnesses.

Magistrate Corrigan had to lock the doors of the Night Court to keep out eager men and eager women who sought to testify. After hearing Kelly and the Seigmeisters, the Magistrate took one look at the crowd of witnesses and discharged the prisoners for lack of evidence.

More than a hundred of the persons who were prevented from taking the stand, rode back to the police station after court and declared their intention of waiting until Precinct Captain Belden arrived, so that they could prefer charges against Kelly.

GERMANY 'SICK SAMSON,' AMERICAN BANKER FINDS

H. C. Stevens Sees Many Obstacles To Recovery—Nation Is 'Down And Out'

Berlin, October 7 (Associated Press).—Present conditions in Germany are unfavorable, according to H. C. Stevens of the National Bank of Commerce of New York, who has been investigating business in this country for many weeks.

"Germany is but a shadow of the great empire of 1914," he said today. "She is a sick Samson, bound with chains and watched by a thousand guards. Her people are not working and have not learned economy and self-denial; her industries are operating only spasmodically, and her once wonderful railroad system is at the point of disintegration.

"Immediate problems before Germany relate to food, coal, and raw material. With food and coal, her labor situation may improve, although at present it is fundamentally unsound, as the better part of Germany's manpower has not returned from the war. If the laboring element abandons the pernicious tactics it now follows, and if raw materials in sufficient quantities can be obtained, Germany can make a start toward rehabilitation.

"It is admitted that if Germany were released from indemnities, if her frontiers were restored to her control, if her fleet should be returned, if watchful supervision over her army organisation and munition factories should be relaxed, and if she could secure raw materials on easy terms, she might well become a menace to peace, but none of these contingencies is likely to happen.

"The question of extending aid to Germany will apparently be decided by public sentiment in America. It is a question to be determined in a dispassionate way. The problem is that America's judgment should be predicated on facts, and not on unreasoning fear."

Fred A. Britten, United States Congressman, who has been in this city for some time, takes issue with Henry Morgenthau, who recently expressed the view that Germany came through the war a "perfect dynamo of strength." Mr. Morgenthau, among other things, said that "Germany, encouraged by discord among weak and struggling states, undoubtedly will resort to arms within a few years and regain her lost territory.."

Speaking today on the subject, Mr. Britten said that he could not understand the statement, adding:

"At present the Germans are wholly under the control of the Entente. They have lost their cannon and airships and the best of their transportation facilities, and a commission is coming to Berlin to see that Germany does not undertake any underhand work. Germany is down and out, and a return to militarism, in the old sense, is out of the question, if for no other reason because the government prevails against it."

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paragoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician knowing of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

"I find your Castoria is very beneficial in the treatment of children's ailments."

"As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine and, aside from my own family experience, I have, in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."
WM. J. MCCRANN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I object to what are called patent medicines, where the maker alone knows what stuff is put in them, but I know the formula of your Castoria and advise its use in proper cases. I judge it to be a very useful, as well as harmless family medicine."

Cotton Market

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co. write as follows in their report dated November 22:

China Cotton.—Our market during the past week under review has proved throughout to be rather sluggish, and whatever little business transpired was done at about 5 mace lower than that ruling during the previous period with hardly any demand on the part of spinners.

The continued monetary stringency appears to be affecting a partial section of holders and in the absence of demand also from Japan due to prohibitive exchange, there is every likelihood of a further depreciation in prices being experienced in the near future.

Although this season's crop is estimated as being lower than that of 1918/1919 season, such discrepancy appears to be more or less replaced by supplies being contracted for, both from India and America by dint of exchange rates now ruling and which are decidedly favorable for importations. Tone of the market Weak.

France's Financial Salvation

BY YVES GUYOT
(Former French Minister of Finance and France's Leading Economist)

It is an unfortunate truth, but it is impossible longer to hide the fact that French exchange cannot soon recover from its present unprecedented slump.

The fact is that it is quite possible it will depreciate even further, and many months may pass before the French franc can regain its average wartime level.

France's economic problem has never been graver.

In my opinion, the only solution of the difficulty remains in the establishment of a world bank, along the lines of the Federal Reserve Bank in the United States.

Such an institution would be a far stronger factor in the maintenance of world peace than any League of Nations. It would in a short time effect an international financial co-operation which would re-establish the world's confidence in impoverished France and make possible the negotiation of long time loans with which to accomplish our reconstruction and complete commercial rehabilitation.

I have long foreseen that the present crisis in French affairs was inevitable in consequence of the artificial financial structure which we built up during the war. France made the mistake ever since she commenced borrowing at home and abroad in failing to increase taxes progressively and proportionate for domestic and foreign liabilities. Now she can only hope to satisfy her creditors with a tremendous home loan, for which the people are unprepared.

Economic experts have long known this. During the war French exchange held fairly well, thanks to the spirit of solidarity among the financiers of the Allied nations who stood shoulder to shoulder during the period of danger.

With the return to power of the rule of supply and demand following the suppression of the German menace, the principle of each one for himself is again operative, and the former bolstering up accorded us by our more fortunate Allies has been withdrawn. There being no secret of France's difficult economic position and no further pressing danger requiring the Allies to come to her aid it is not surprising that the world's confidence is warning.

To restore this confidence is not easy, for our situation is peculiarly difficult.

In addition to our tremendous foreign debts we have 35,000,000,000 of francs in paper, the circulation of which is backed up by a bare 5,000,000,000 of gold and 2,000,000,000 of other assets. Our imports greatly exceed our exports, for how can we produce for exportation when we are deprived of the essential raw materials and machinery and are handicapped on the score of labor? Having few export commodities we must buy raw materials with money, but our money is worth comparatively little.

Furthermore, our protective tariff has made importation of raw materials in many cases prohibitive. It is strange to see that this tariff discourages production under the present conditions and raises the price of the finished products so that we cannot meet foreign competition. It is the irony of fate that many French commodities de luxe, notably silks, which formerly had a corner on the American market, are now made in America, shutting out the French products.

When it is considered that the major portion of our exports before the war were of the de luxe class, it will be seen what a serious setback we are given.

Despite these and other circumstances which conspire against our economic recovery, we could regain our former prestige in a reasonable time by hard effort and strict economy, especially by the Government, if it were possible to get a big loan in order to consolidate the huge floating debt which now strides the nation's shoulders like an old seaman.

This done and confidence restored we would be able to deal advantageously.

A World Bank could effect such loans the same as the Federal Reserve Bank in an analogous transaction on a smaller scale in the United States. No powerful combination of financiers such as would make up the world Bank could fail to see the international catastrophe if France should become insolvent to recognise the tremendous advantage of putting us back on our feet.

This bank could be organised at a conference of the banks of all nations, or it might be floated by the League of Nations if that body is put on an operative basis.

RED TAPE IN ENGLAND HOLDS UP FOOD SHIPS

Tons Of Meat Spoiled Because Storehouses Have Not Been Released Since War

London, October 20.—Fifty ships flying the American flag reported yesterday from Liverpool to the American General Consulate in London that they were held in port awaiting discharge. The preceding day twenty-five were tied up, and today twenty-eight. Half of these ships are loaded with food. Ships of other nations also idly congest the ports and draw "unemployment dole" in the form of demurrage.

The British consumer will find added to the high cost of the delivery of the food in Europe, the useless extra cost of ship rent payable for each day of delay in port.

The trouble is partly due to labor which still shows an inclination to enjoy repose in parks rather than to work. But even with an adequate supply of dockhands many of the ships could not unload because of the lack of storage facilities.

These storage places, in the great ports of England, were taken over by the government during the war, and there has been the usual red tape delay in the release of them. This not only causes a considerable increase in the British cost of imported products but already has compelled the condemnation of thousands of tons of meat which spoiled aboard ships or on the docks.

Fighting In France Was Youths And Mother's War

Washington, October 4.—Records in the War Risk Insurance bureau show that the fighting in France for America has been a young man's war and a mother's war. More than forty-seven percent of the men who carried government insurance made mothers their beneficiaries. Fathers were named by approximately sixteen percent of the men. The average age of the men killed in France was twenty-three years.

An examination of the records in the bureau of War Risk Insurance shows that a large percentage of married men in arranging for the future protection of their families planned for insurance to be paid to their mothers, while their thought, in arranging their compensation benefits, was for their wives. About thirty-two percent of the men who carried War Risk Insurance named their wives in making arrangements for compensation. Mothers were named by twenty-two percent, while the "wife and child" were named by fourteen percent.

HUGE DEATH CLAIMS

Insurance claims which the bureau will be called upon to pay amount to more than $1,012,000,000. The amount of premiums received from all service men and which was deducted from their pay during the active period of the war approximates only $200,000,000, or less than one-fifth of the amount of insurance claims. The excess above premiums will be paid by the government.

More than 1,200,000 men who were born and raised on farms in the United States and who served in the army, navy and marine corps during the war carried approximately $10,488,000,000 of war risk insurance. Records show that a large percentage of this sum was made payable to their mothers, fathers and others who reside on farms.

According to an estimate made by the Department of Agriculture, the loss in man power to farms as the result of former service men giving up farm life for the city upon their return from the war, eventually, after the general restlessness brought about 500,000.

Records in the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, compiled during the demobilisation, covering the period from January 1, 1919, to June 1, last, show that more than half the men change their residence after being mustered out of service.

RETURN INSURANCE

A certain percentage of veterans are keeping up their government insurance. In order to reach those who temporarily have allowed their insurance to lapse, the Bureau of War Risk Insurance has organised a voluntary field force which will endeavor to conserve as much as possible of the nearly $40,000,000,000 of insurance carried by men in the service. This nationwide field force consists of organisations interested in the welfare of soldiers, sailors and marines, among them, the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., War Camp Community Service, K. of C., Y. M. C. A., and other associations. In addition, the voluntary services of more than 500,000 life insurance agents have been enlisted.

There are more than 22,000,000 individual records in the Bureau, this large number being necessary in order to keep the data on every man's insurance up to date. More than five miles of files are required to hold these records. To July 1 there had been 17,828,445 checks mailed. During the first six months of 1919, there were more than 4,000,000 letters received by the bureau. An army of correspondents is needed to take care of the great daily inflow of letters from former service men seeking information on all phases of War Risk Insurance.

IMPARTIAL & PROGRESSIVE

SHANGHAI, NOV. 22, 1919

Complications

FURTHER consideration of the action of the United States Senate in favor of the Shantung and other reservations with regard to the Treaty of Peace, leads to the belief that, so far as the United States is concerned, President Wilson's work at Paris in behalf of a League of Nations has come to nought. It has been rejected.

The Senate has now made the following reservations:

America declines to assume any obligations concerning the political independence or territorial sovereignty of other nations.

America withholds assent to the Shantung award and reserves to herself full liberty of action in respect of any controversy which may arise concerning such award as between Japan and China.

America reserves that she alone shall interpret the Monroe doctrine, "which is wholly outside the jurisdiction of the League of Nations."

America reserves the right to increase armaments without the consent of the League of Nations whenever she is threatened with invasion or engaged in war.

America reserves the right to trade with nationals of a state which breaks the Covenant, providing those nationals reside outside the state in question.

With these reservations (and apparently more to come) the United States is as much out of the League of Nations as she would be if she were on the moon. And we may include in this all of North and South America with the exception of the British dominions and colonies in that hemisphere, so that the League of Nations for practical purposes is confined to the Old World for the present. As a matter of fact the League of Nations already exists so far as Europe is concerned, for the Covenant and Treaty both have been ratified by the requisite three great powers.

We fully expect that the Senate of the United States also will ratify, but with the above and perhaps several additional reservations. If Europe wants to accept our co-partnership for peace on those terms it will have the opportunity to do so. Otherwise the United States will remain apart as it always has done, and as many Americans believe, it always should do.

Hannis Taylor, our former Minister to Spain and author of "International Public Law," recently declared that in his opinion Europe should try out the League of Nations scheme on her own. If Europe can't make it go, we can't, was his contention, because the American people are not going to commit themselves to the policy of sending troops all over the world to intervene in wars in which they feel they have no concern. "Until Europe has tried the experiment there should be no attempt to complicate the program by a fusion of the politics of two hemispheres that have always stood apart," was the way he put it.

A highly important complication, however, is this, that if the Allies reject the American reservations, America will not sign the Treaty of Peace and will make a separate Treaty of Peace with Germany. Prof. Taylor discussing this phase says:

"As we were never allies of the Entente, we really have nothing to do with their treaty of peace. After they have made one, we will be at liberty to renew diplomatic relations with Germany in such manner as our interests demand, free from the endless complications a contrary course will involve; free from all secret arrangements contemplating the unthinkable sending of American soldiers to Turkey or Armenia."

Extravagance In Government

By William H. King
(United States Senator From Utah)

It is apparently a most pleasant, certainly it is an easy task, to vote money out of the Treasury of the United States. I have served in this body for a little more than two years, and I recall but few instances in which there have been pleas for economy in governmental expenditures; seldom indeed has the taxpayer, upon whom the burden rests, been the object of concern or solicitude upon the part of Senators.

Our principal concern, apparently, has been to get money out of the Treasury. There has been but little interest shown in ascertaining the ways and means of putting money into the Treasury. It has looked at times as if any appropriation that might be asked, if it were large enough, could receive the approval of Congress, indeed, it has been said that the larger the appropriation the easier its passage.

The psychology of large appropriations sometimes leads to an inquiry. It may be rather irrelevant and the reply wholly insufficient, yet, as a rule, it stifles further inquiry and prevents further opposition. A huge appropriation, as I have observed, rarely provokes an inquiry and seldom results in opposition. I have sometimes thought that there was a conspiracy of silence upon the part of Senators when appropriation bills were presented to this body.

PUBLIC DISREGARDED

The interests of the public seem to be disregarded. The taxpayer seems to be voiceless here and to be on trial with none to defend and with a court predetermined to convict. Those seeking appropriations are usually active in advocacy of their demands and eloquent speakers are ready to proclaim the virtues and necessities of the demanded appropriation.

I have noticed in many instances organised efforts to obtain appropriations, and it is an obvious fact that many seeking appropriations are not concerned in the source from which the money expended must come.

We persist in our extravagances and ignore the warnings of history and the admonitions of the wise and courageous in our midst.

There were some unthinking people who entertained the view that the greatest dangers to be encountered by our country were those which the war produced. These same individuals fancied that with the termination of the war our nation, as well as other nations, would pass from the storm into a placid and pacific sea. They failed to appreciate what history so strongly teaches—that the post-war problems and dangers are even more serious than those to be encountered when nations are at war.

SEEMS TO BE OBVIOUS

This seems so obvious that one cannot understand how it could be controverted. When the integrity of the Government is assailed and the standard of war is raised the people come together with an earnestness and devotion not experienced in days of peace.

War produces for the moment a patriotic fervor and a feeling of sacrifice and service that transforms individuals and nations; and so they do heroic things in a heroic way. But when peace comes the moral stimulus that led them to mighty achievement and self-abnegation seems to subside. Too often the spirit of materialism takes possession of the people, they become mercenary and selfish; greed, cupidity and avarice find expression in individuals and nations.

We are not free from this well-recognised characteristic among nations. We are exhibiting the weakness and selfishness, perhaps the cupidity and avarice, that have followed other nations and peoples in other ages after mighty contests have been concluded.

EXPERIENCE IS IGNORED

The world is on fire. We are not free from its scorching heat. All patriotic Americans, all who love our flag and our country should so conduct themselves as to not add to the conflagation or increase the difficulties and dangers now confronting this Nation. While historical precedents and the experience of the past are illuminating and instructive too often they are written in a book which is closed, if not sealed, to the eyes of the people.

We forget the law of cause and effect and are unwilling to be guided by the lamp of experience, the teachings that come down from wise statesmen and prophetic leaders who have gloriously served humanity.

Because we think we are standing upon the shoulders of our fathers we believe that we have broader visions than those who lived in the past, and that we will avoid the pitfalls which were in their paths, as well as in the paths of nations. It has been said that the lamp of experience, even if we have it in our hands, if devoid of oil or if there is oil within it we are so indifferent to its worth as to refuse to light it. I am not sure that we are meeting the problems of this hour with greater courage and wisdom than that which guided our fathers and our fathers' fathers.

There are some who doubt our ability to satisfactorily meet the evils of this day and to preserve our civilisation and our country. I do not share this view. I am of the opinion that each succeeding age records some advancement, however slight, over the preceding one. Humanity's progress is slow; it is a long journey from the darkness of the past into the light of an effulgent and enduring civilisation.

EVILS OF EXTRAVAGANCE

But I desire to particularly call attention to one of the evils of most, if not all, nations—that of extravagance and profligacy in dealing with public funds. We have not learned the lesson of economy. The American people, as individuals and as a people, are hopelessly extravagant. The value of money to them is unknown. Thrift is not one of our virtues. Though the people were never so prosperous and wages were never so high, I am afraid that the ultimate savings will be so insignificant as to emphasise the claim that we are an extravagant and thriftless people.

The municipalities and counties and States are increasing their expenditures by millions and hundreds of millions. There is no proper ratio between expenditures and benefits and increases in population. I think American Government, whether municipal, State or nation, is the most costly and extravagant Government in the world. Economy, which is urged by all political parties, is a virtue possessed by none. The democrats when out of power denounce the Republicans because of their profligacy and their waste of public treasure, but when in power I am afraid it is too true that they follow the unworthy footsteps of the Republican party.

When the House and Senate at the last election were placed in the hands of the Republicans we heard the cry from hundreds of Republican orators that the extravagances of the Democrats had brought the nation to the brink of bankruptcy, but that now the most rigid economy was to be pursued and the nation was to be saved, the expenses of the Government were to be reduced, and reforms were to be wrought in all departments of the Federal Government.

PLEDGES ARE FORGOTTEN

These loud cries from our Republican friends seem to have been forgotten; the pledges and promises of economy and reform do not leave even an echo to remind us of these loud vociferations.

If the appropriations made since the Republicans came into power be scrutinised, one will easily be convinced that there has been no reform. There has not been even a spasm of economy. Waste and extravagance have found a place in the measures receiving approval in the legislative branch of the Government. Organised efforts have been more successful in getting money out of the treasury under the Republican administration than when the Democrats were in power.

Indeed, I believe that there is greater rapacity and effrontery upon the part of organisations now than ever before. Every conceivable scheme is suggested for the purpose of getting Federal aid. Individuals, municipalities and States are urged to make demands upon the Federal treasury, and the plainest duties resting upon the sovereign States are ignored in order that the Federal Government may assume obligations which are not within its constitutional power.

POLICY LEADS TO DEFICITS

It is a dangerous way to legislate—that is, to appropriate money without any thought of how the appropriation is to be met. This policy has led to the enormous deficits in the budgets of municipalities and States and nations. If individuals were so reckless in the conduct of their private affairs they would soon be brought into the courts of bankruptcy.

The appropriations which are being made by this Congress are so staggering and so stupendous that the taxes of the Government, in my opinion, will have to be increased, or we will have to resort to another bond issue in order to meet the deficit that our appropriations are creating.

We have proceeded during the past two years in framing revenue bills upon the theory that excess profits and income would furnish the overwhelming proportion of the taxes that would be poured into the Federal treasury.

I make the prediction that on account of the constant strikes that are going on in our land and the diminution in prospectivity in almost every activity in our country, the excess profits for the calendar year of 1920 will be much less than for 1919, and that the number who will pay an income tax during such calendar year will be less than the number who paid an income tax during the year 1919.

NEW TAXES FORESEEN

If we fall down materially in excess profits and in incomes, it is manifest that we will be compelled to resort to other sources of taxation: we may have to lay consumption taxes upon the country, perhaps taxes upon tea, upon coffee, upon many of the things that go into the daily wants and necessities of the people.

We owe a duty to the people, and it is our sworn duty to scrutinise with the utmost care every dollar appropriated from the public treasury. Now, more than ever, should the most rigid economy be practised. The example set by Congress will affect not only the municipalities and States, but will affect the people themselves. If the Government is prodigal and wasteful and grossly extravagant, its influence will be felt by the people. Its evil example will be followed by many, and it will be largely responsible for the dire consequences which will come to individuals as well as to the nation.

The time has come now when we must balance our accounts. We should take stock and ascertain what our assets are, and inquire as to what our liabilities consist of. This is not a partisan matter. We are confronted with a plain business proposition. We are charged with a solemn duty to relieve the people from burdensome taxation and to cut down the expenses of the Government. We are not discharging that duty.

Notwithstanding that nearly one year has elapsed since the armistice, we are still spending hundreds of millions of dollars monthly, billions of dollars for the year and though the taxes imposed upon the people are enormous we will be confronted with a deficit so huge and enormous as to terrify even the most courageous financier and statesman.

A New Thought For Labor

By Sir Robert Hadfield
(The Largest Steel Maker in England)

Edward Markham, an American philosopher-poet, has said that the three great essentials of life are bread, beauty and brotherhood.

Many solutions which include both bread and brotherhood have been suggested for the paramount question of the moment—labor unrest—and its settlement in peaceful terms. They have not possibly succeeded—is it because the third element has been forgotten. Suppose, in addition to better wages and more equality we try large and daily doses of beauty as a cure for incessant strikes? I believe that consciously or unconsciously, workers are rebelling, not against hours or pay, but against the grayness and flatness of their lives.

Think of our unattractive industrial towns up north—row upon row of graystone houses with only tiny graystone yards to separate them from graystone streets and the factories perpetually fogging the air and spoiling even so humble a beauty as a snowy curtain at the window.

IN THE COAL DISTRICTS

Think of the once peaceful green valleys in the South Wales coal districts. Now they are huddles of bleak cottages with no outlook, where the very grass that struggles up in unfrequented corners is grimed from its birth. Go where you will in English towns and you will always find tree-lined suburbs and gardens full of commons for the prosperous; but only squalor, blank and ugly, for the laboring classes.

People appear to have a strange idea that because a man is poor and works with his hands he does not care for nature or art, that the song of a skylark as it soars above the cornfield and the sight of a beach tree in Spring mean nothing to him. Poverty is a barrier in many directions, but it is no bar to the possession of that love of the beautiful which is a joy forever. All day and every, whether they know it or not, the toiling masses seek for loveliness as simply as a flower turns toward the sun.

Do you want proofs? Then walk down a repellant back street in a manufacturing town and see how the quest is carried on—by many a basement window blocked with geraniums till daylight can hardly get in, by the draggled woman who furtively picks up the fading buttonhole bouquet, you have flung away and takes it home to grace her worktable, by a girl's Sunday blouse in a hue you call vivid and vile, but which to her, in its colorful contrast with her surroundings, represents beauty.

LOVE FOR MUSIC

It is in the poorest quarters that most flags are hung out on joy days and most paper roses festoon the ceilings at Christmas. Go down a humble street any Sunday and you will hear more gramaphones, more pianos and more singers than in a whole middle-class suburb. It is music at which cultivated taste may shudder, hues that may repel the artistic, but they are color, joy and melody in the lives of the poor, who have far too little of all three.

Stand in some back street where patient care has triumphed over dirt and sunlessness, making a gay little garden of canary creeper in a window box, and note how passers-by, almost without exception, stop to gaze and admire. Or, as social workers have often done, take slum children back from a day in the country to their dreary homes and see how the other youngsters in the street will almost mob them for the bunches of wild flowers in their hot little hands. You will never doubt again whether workers love and need beauty.

There are many ways in which employers can help those under them to enjoy the finer things of life.

Some time ago my firm arranged to give to our 16,000 workers and their friends a cinema picture entertainment which continued for ten evenings, of naval films, America's part in the war and some water-color paintings and etchings by Herbert J. Finn. Some of Mr. Finn's artistic work portrayed parts of steel furnaces, forging presses, shell shops and machine shops of all kinds. They were intended to show the artisan that there is beauty in his work, harmony, line and color even in his mechanical job.

GRACE IN DAILY TASK

If workers are brought to realise that there is grace even about the daily round and the common task, such experiments as this are well worth the trouble. About 1,000 people attended the show nightly while it was being held and one worker made an acute and imaginative remark to Mr. Finn. He said, "Truth is a hard thing to paint, but you seem to have done it." And did not Keats tell us that "beauty is truth beauty"?

More recently Hadfields, Ltd., invited about 150 employes of all grades for a day's visit to London to see the British Scientific Products Exhibition, the Science Museum at South Kensington and Westminster Abbey. The first two gave them a glimpse of the romance and beauty of their own work among machinery, and the Abbey was a revelation of the harmonious grandeur of fine architecture. I cannot help feeling that a great deal might be effected to make the relations between capital and labor more cordial in this sort of way—by bringing change and stimulus into monotonous lives.

Garden cities help greatly, and I would like to see all artisans living in such healthy and charming colonies as that of Bournville, where every man has a home which is pretty as well as properly built, and a plot of ground he can fill with color, and in which he tastes the keen joy of making things grow by his own efforts—a great antidote to the unavoidably mechanical nature of industrial work. Pictures, plays, cinemas, books, dancing—all these bring something that is not merely utilitarian into workers' lives.

There are few things more wonderful in a prosaic world than the love of life with all its tremendous possibilities for those who care to seize them. We need to instill into the laborer a sense of the beautiful in nature and art and make him understand the deep contentment that comes from work well done. Then we shall have, not drudges toiling blindly without joy, but men realising themselves and their powers, no longer feeling shut out from a wide world full of interest and beauty.

That is the worker's point of view. From the employer's, too, the second of Edward Markham's essentials is worth cultivating in his artisans, for the hours spent away from the bench determine in great measure the quality of work done at the bench. There is nothing truer than this in all economics.

Correspondence

SHANGHAI WAR MEMORIAL

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—Early in the year there appeared in the "Municipal Gazette" correspondence with reference to the provision of a War Memorial for Shanghai.

A preliminary committee was appointed, as follows: Mr. E. C. Pearce (Municipal Council of the Foreign Settlement); Mr. P. le Bris (French Municipal Council); Mr. H. A. J. Macray (British Chamber of Commerce); Mr. J. Beudin (French Chamber of Commerce).

Other Allied Nationals, through their respective chambers of commerce, were invited to appoint representatives on the committee, and accordingly the following appointments were made: America, Mr. F. R. Sites; Belgium, M. Demets; China, Mr. Sung Han-chang; Italy, Mr. G. A. Bena; Japan, Mr. K. Kodama; Portugal, Mr. J. H. Botelho; Russia, Mr. A. Drachenfels.

The committee held their first meeting on Thursday evening last, and it was decided to take the preliminary step of inviting the public to offer suggestions for a memorial best suited to local needs and conditions. Such suggestions and discussion as may, by your courtesy, appear in these columns, will be noted and duly considered by the committee.

Readers are reminded for their information that by agreement between the French and Foreign Municipal Councils, a site on The Bund at the end of Avenue Edward VII has been reserved in view of the possible erection there of a memorial in the form of a Cenotaph, of suitable design and with provision for an Allied Roll of Honor, giving as complete a list as may be possible in the circumstances of Shanghai Allied citizens who have fallen in the war.

Another suggestion made at the meeting of the committee was that a fund should be raised for the purpose of paying off the debt on the Shanghai General Hospital, the management of which would then be taken over in the name of and for the service of, the foreign community, as a civic war memorial. In such case, a portion of any subscriptions from the Chinese residents could, if they desired it, be allocated to the Shantung Road Hospital, thus associating the Chinese with the memorial and its benefit.

These are only suggestions, and the matter is open to full discussion. The cost of whatever memorial may be decided upon will be borne by public subscription, supported, in all probability, by grants from the Council of the Foreign Settlement and the French Municipal Council. I am, Sir, Yours etc.

H. L. PEARCE,
Secretary to the Committee.

Wants Far Eastern Stamps

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: Would any of your readers who are stamp collectors, preferably medium and advanced; care to exchange with a collector in England, one, who happens to be one of the numerous army of disabled men (loss of right leg and dangerous various condition of left leg) whose sole hobby in a compulsory sedentary life is that of stamp collecting?

It may seem an unusual request but I find it extremely difficult to get into touch with collectors in the Far East. Should any correspondents prefer English newspapers, etc., I would gladly mail them out. I may add I am keenly interested in Hongkong, etc., stamps. I will acknowledge every letter sent to me. Yours faithfully,

Christian Literature Society

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—I desire to call the attention of your readers to the opportunity that will soon be given them to help a specially worthy enterprise, that has been doing a great work in past years for the benefit of the Chinese people. I refer to the Christian Literature Society, whose work is the publication and dissemination among the Chinese of literature on a great variety of subjects—history, biography, government, science, religion, and general information. Millions of pages of these books have been circulated in China in the course of the decades that have elapsed since the society was organised, and they have without doubt been a tremendous influence in the uplift and onward progress that has been a marked characteristic of the country in recent years. As the Chinese are a reading people, books are held in high esteem by them, and the Christian Literature Society has had a fine field for its endeavors.

The support of the society has been derived from funds contributed by friends in England, Canada, the United States and China. The men who have prepared the books have been loaned to the society by the various boards of missions operating in China. The most noted name among these workers is the name of Dr. Timothy Richard, who was General Secretary of the Society for many years, and it was principally through his labors that the work of the society attained such large proportions and gained such fine support from its friends. But Dr. Richard was taken from us in the early part of this year and the society has thereby suffered a great loss.

Owing to the exigencies of the war, together with the tremendous rise in exchange, added to the loss of Dr. Richard's most fruitful labors, the society now finds itself in financial difficulties. Many of the valuable books that have been in circulation heretofore are now out of print, and funds must be provided to reprint them. Large numbers of manuscripts are awaiting publication, and funds are needed for the development of the distribution agencies that are necessary to the success of the work. On this account, the society proposes to raise a fund of $30,000 in memory of its great secretary, Dr. Timothy Richard, and I am sure no more worthy appeal could be made to all well-wishers of China than this call of the Christian Literature Society for help at this crisis. Both Chinese and foreign friends will be appealed to for contributions, and it is confidently expected that the whole amount asked for will be contributed without great delay.

Just at this time when China is in the transition stage, and the minds of the leaders of the people are open to the light that this society can give them, the appeal comes with special force, and all who wish to help China at this time cannot do better than to aid the Christian Literature Society in its great work.—I am, Yours faithfully,

A. P. Parker.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark) is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

How Beaded Bags Differ

(New York Sun)

There is a vast difference between the beaded bag of commerce and the beaded bag of quality. The former is apt to be a thing to set an artist's teeth on edge while the latter is often a veritable object of art.

This has always been true, but perhaps never so noticeable as now, when beaded bags of the highest quality embody all the exquisite charm of the best eighteenth century handiwork.

Futuristic decorations have been consigned to that limbo which has been yawning for them and which they will unquestionably grace. The patterns employed are almost without exception of the slightly quaint and conventional order seen in eighteenth century tapestry work. They are carried out in delicate and restrained colors.

LANDSCAPES ON BAGS

Conventional wreaths of flowers in soft, faded tones and bits of quaint, gay landscape are imposed upon backgrounds in delicate yellows and grays.

The old time reticule is imitated with fidelity in the round shape, the silver mounting and the fringed border.

Unmounted bead bags of remarkable beauty are generously large and long and perfectly straight across the bottom. They are drawn close at the top by means of a ribbon or a beaded cord. On a groundwork of black or steel beads is imposed an old fashioned wreath of roses in lovely natural colors.

The bag which combines crochet with bead work is much in evidence, particularly in the long slim gourdlike shape which can be hung over the wrist or dangled from a ring. These are shown with the upper part of the crocheted silk and the lower part covered with a sort of beaded fringe, which consists of loops of tiny beads mounted in close rows to cover the bag.

BAGS COVERED WITH FRINGE

Many bags, usually of the drawn variety, are covered with this looped fringe. One delectable bag of this type, which looks like a bubble, is entirely of crystal beads. Another, flat, round and mounted in gold, is composed of looped fringe in shaded turquoise beads, set on in circular form.

A short, broad little bag has the lower half covered with the same fringe in brown and tan beads, the upper half of brown silk and the mounting of tortoise shell.

There are a few new and desirable black velvet bags, one of which has a sort of mantle cut in deep points, which are embroidered and tipped with steel. Another, wide and gathered on the frame, has a band of black moire through the center. A third has an exquisite carved ivory mounting.

Of course there are the usual bags made of handsome brocaded silks and embossed velvets, which are too familiar to need more than a passing word, but there is an interesting new bag in brocaded duveteen, which is sure to receive favorable consideration.

There are a great number of choice and lovely purses and card and cigarette cases, done in hand woven brocades which will be coveted by any woman of taste. If her pocket book doesn't happen to fit a taste so excellent, so much the worse.

PRACTICAL HANDBAGS

Among the practical leather hand bags shown there is absolutely nothing new, but one exclusive shop shows a large, square purse of black patent leather which is decorated by a border of white kid fringe, set flat on the purse above the edge.

There is also a sensible bag which combines leather and velvet and there are a number of buff leather bags embroidered in Oriental colors.

Very much of a novelty is the bag whose surface is covered entirely with narrow taupe ribbon set on edge in a close serpentine pattern. On this background is sketched, in colored ribbon, a curious Chinese design which includes bits of real coral and jade in its working out.

Fascinating party bags have been provided which are simply little silk bags on draw strings of ribbon, with a cap shaped bottom and border of flowers. Violets, roses or forget-me-nots are, of course mounted on silk of the corresponding color.

Monkeying With Ol Tempus Fugit

By Roy K. Moulton

There is a new sort of graft that may make monkeys of us all.

We are a sophisticated people and we have thought that we were wise to every sort of graft that could possibly be invented. But along comes a new one.

A learned scientist has grafted the glands of a monkey into the person of a venerable old gentleman who was about to give up the fight against the high cost of living and join his fathers. Before the experiment the party was in the neighborhood of eighty. Afterward, to all intents and purposes, he was in the neighborhood of twenty and was taking an interest in feminine styles for the first time in forty years. The first thing he asked for was a red necktie; two tickets to a musical show and a box of cigarettes.

Almost in the twinkling of an eye sixty years had been knocked off this old boy's age. Science stands aghast, and well it may. This is something to be aghasted about or dodgasted about, or flabbergasted about, as the case may be.

The grafting in of the simian glands has given Mr. Octogenarian all the vigor, pep, agility and strength of the healthy monkey. The scientist met the dreaded old Tempus Fugit and handed Tempus a Dempsey that will keep him in retirement for some time. Or so they do say.

It seems rather tough on the old man, making him start all over again, and it was rather a grim sort of joke on the monkey. Maybe the old man had had enough of it and maybe the monkey was just starting an ambitious career with all his illusions before him. But that is neither here nor there. Nothing can stand in the way of science when science gets its dander up.

Of course, inheriting the agility and perhaps some of the characteristics of the monkey may not be so bad. Some persons might profit by said characteristics and abilities when trying to hang onto a strap in the subway against the Bolshevik propensities of his fellow travelers. He might find his monkey characteristics handy while trying to cling to a seat in the third gallery of a theater, and no one will deny the fact that it is a good thing these days to know how to climb a tree and remain hidden in the branches and throw cocoanuts down at bill collectors, income tax assessors and panhandlers.

But perhaps there are some among us who upon approaching senility would prefer to inherit the characteristics of some of the other members of the faunal world.

May we not venture the suggestion that there are many ultimate consumers who would perhaps prefer to absorb some of the propensities of the goat instead of the monkey? Of course, the argument may be raised that the ult consumer is already a goat, but that, of course, is only in the jocular or frivolous sense, and this is a serious discussion. A real goat can get a square meal off a billboard or a clothesline in the neighbor's yard. A copy of Webster's dictionary makes a banquet for a goat, especially when followed by a comic supplement for dessert. How many problems would be solved! Perhaps a better suggestion, however, would be to graft glands from the ostrich.

When an ostrich wants food he invariably seeks a hardware store, or if there are no hardware stores open he will collect a satisfactory meal in the back yard of a junk shop, filling up on old stove lids, baby carriage wheels, discarded graniteware and iron bedsprings. Most every ult consumer knows where there are a lot of these things.

Some of us who must spend our time on foot in densely populated cities might prefer to graft a few of the leaping capabilities of the kangaroo. It would be a distinct aid in the traffic, and who, may we ask, who among us has not wished for the locomotive powers and tensile strength of the elephant.

Getting down to cases, this scholarly diagnosis of the latest achievement of science would not be complete without a mention of the fact that, probably, if there is any grafting to be done, a great many citizens will choose to receive the glands of the camel, that remarkable animal which can overcome the hardships of a dry country without apparent effort. Let the good professor experiment with camel glands. He might at once strike a great popular chord.

This achievement of science will perhaps never receive the acclaim that it deserves, for it has always been simple for a man to be a monkey without a surgical operation.

Pretty women, by the way, have made monkeys of many of them. So have the politicians and goldmine promoters.

Flu And Far Between

According to bulletins which are being issued by health authorities, a lot of people who never had influenza before are going to have it this Winter. This is the health authorities' idea of a friendly tip.

So when the flu gets you this Winter you can't say, "This is so sudden," or beg off on the ground that you aren't prepared to entertain germs.

Rules have been prepared to enable you to dodge the microbe, however, and anyone who has the patience to follow them conscientiously ought to be able to show a clean pair of heels to a whole army of germs.

In the first place, remember that although two flues make a draft one draft will make a flu.

Always sleep with the window open and the mouth closed. If married, always sleep with the hip pocket locked.

Avoid crowds. In other words to escape influenza stay away from (1) church, (2) theater, (3) window demonstrators and (4) work.

Avoid fatigue. Lie down and rest for two hours after breakfast, three hours after lunch and two hours after dinner. If this does not relieve you, lie down for an hour before each meal.

Drink plenty of fresh water. That's about the best you can do these days.

Remember that but very few vegetarians catch the flu. The flu loves a fight and rarely picks on anyone with a birdseed appetite.

We never heard of a person whose diet consisted of nothing but green peppers having the flu. The deduction seems to be that if you eat nothing but green peppers you'll never get the flu. Come to think of it, however, we never heard of anyone living on green peppers, anyhow.

Be sure to get plenty of exercise in the open air every day. Most people are able to do this, but a few—such as convicts and subway guards—haven't much chance.

And if you really do get the flu don't boast about it. It exasperates the germ.

Physical Culture For Women Workers

(New York Sun)

There is a modest New York stenographer, Evelyn Mueller by name, who, in spite of her business career, has kept herself in such fit condition that doctors and physical culture experts declare her "physically perfect." She is a member of the United Club, 243 East Thirty-fourth street, one of the largest clubhouses maintained by the New York League of Women Workers, and it was here that she told how she developed her great physical strength. She had just finshed a wresting bout with two of her sister club members and was obligingly holding out one arm to serve as a turning pole for one who wanted to "skin the cat."

"It isn't hard for girls to keep themselves physically fit nowadays," she said while resting between acrobatic stunts. "There are plenty of recreational facilities at hand, and it is the duty of every working woman to take advantage of them. I feel that it is just as important to keep my body strong and my muscles trained as it is to keep my mind informed—it is just human efficiency, and the girl who lets her shoulders hump and her muscles sag, who drags about wearily and is always tired out, is a slacker. She belongs in a class with girls who go about in curl papers all morning, and wear sagging skirts and down at the heel shoes.

"Fortunately, a lot of working girls who compete with men in the business world have learned the value of physical fitness and have also learned to club together as men do to get the things they cannot have by themselves. Now take this clubhouse as an example: There are 900 of us and all day long we're busy, at different sorts of occupations. One girl is a milliner, another a fashion artist, another a stenographer. But when evening comes we do as the men do—'go to the club.'

"There are so many of us interested in swimming that we were able to club together and get the exclusive use of one of the municipal baths every Monday night. We have a teacher for girls who cannot swim, and those of us who can do stunts play water polo and otherwise enjoy our 'private swimming pool.' Basketball, volley ball, roller skating, gymnastic stunts—we all of us can have just as much of them as we wish.

"Then in the summer the New York League of Women Workers, with which the United Club is affiliated, has a fine big summer camp up at Matasac, near Peekskill, and there of course we live the best sort of outdoor life, with swimming, games, hikes and boating in the daytime and campfires and early 'taps' at night. Down on Staten Island we have a week end camp, so that in addition to the two weeks we can take at Matasac we often get a taste of camp life over Sunday.

NO EXCUSE FOR FLABBINESS

"Any girl who doesn't keep herself up to the mark is just lazy. Not knowing about the various facilities for fun and exercise is only an excuse. Anybody can find out. We United Club girls swim at one place, play basketball at another and roller skate at a third. If girls hang together they can have all the luxuries of a first class men's club—that is, all the things we hear of men doing.

"I don't believe much in 'setting up' exercises. They are good for some corrective reasons, but on the whole are mechanical and joyless. It is much better to take your exercise having fun, like playing basketball, or football, or hockey, or swimming, or skating. Competitive stunts are always fun, too—running races or jumping or swinging on the rings, and the old fashioned games beloved of childhood—run, sheep, run, red rover, last couple out, snap the whip—are wonderful tonic exercises. They make you happy and exhilarated."

GERMANY SUFFERS FROM LACK OF COIN

Currency Situation Described By Returning Americans As Growing Worse

COUNTERFEITERS ARE BUSY

People Buy Jewelry and Art Works To Be Redeemed When The Mark Rises

New York, Oct. 12.—The currency situation in Germany, according to Americans who recently have returned from that country, is rapidly degenerating into a condition where values are being destroyed, and where those who have money are keenly intent upon turning it into goods and merchandise, which may be kept until such time as money values are restored and some semblance of order returns to financial affairs.

There is no gold or silver money anywhere to be found, these returned Americans say, and even the copper and zinc coins which formerly were plentful have long since disappeared from general circulation, and are only to be had now upon payment of a large premium. Foreign money is in great demand, and it, too, sells at a large premium over its pre-war value. In fact, it is said, people in Germany are willing to accept almost anything in return for the many different kinds of paper currency now circulating there.

The paper money, which is in far greater volume than ever before, is of innumerable varieties. The Government, through the Reichsbank, issues notes in denominations of 1, 2, 5, 10, 50, 100, and 1,000 marks. The cities and towns, too, have recently taken to issuing notes in some of these denominations, and, in addition, are putting into circulation great quantities of small notes of 10 to 50 phennig denomination. These emissions of the cities and towns circulate at their face value, or something approaching face value only in the municipalities which are responsible for them, and other municipalities, it is alleged, refuse absolutely to recognise the issues of their sister cities.

American Traveler Annoyed

One American, who has just got back from Germany, tells a story of having changed a good part of his money at Coblenz into the paper notes issued at that place. When he got to Cologne his money was no good. Only by accepting a heavy discount could he change it, through a currency dealer, into money which was current at Cologne. Then, as his travels progressed, he discovered that the Cologne money had no value outside of that city, and at Berlin he had to change it again, also at a discount.

In Berlin there is a tremendous amount of counterfeit money in circulation. The same American who experienced the unhappy fate of having to change his "city money" several times was stuck with some of the counterfeit bills at Berlin, where, he says, the counterfeiters are working more openly than in any place he has ever visited.

"While I was in Berlin a couple of months ago," he said, "the German Government had to call in the 50-mark note dated Oct. 20, 1918, because it had been so widely counterfeited. The Government simply could not keep up with the makers of the spurious bills, and so resorted to the heroic method of calling in the real bills and canceling them. They issued a proclamation declaring all 50-mark notes of that date obsolete after a certain day and demanded that all who had the real bills change them at once.

The Bolsheviki played an important role in the circulation of counterfeit money in Germany. They first came over and did a big business by exchanging Russian ruble currency at ridiculous figures for German marks. When the German Government stopped this it is alleged the Bolshevist agents went back to Russia and calmly proceeded to print mark notes, duplicating those issued by the Reichsbank. These, it is claimed, were smuggled into Germany by the carload.

GERMANS BUYING JEWELRY

Many Germans, an American banker who recently was there says, are fearful that the mark will continue to depreciate for some time to come and are buying all the jewelry wherever it is possible. They are also buying works of art, paintings, and so forth, hoping that ultimately they will be able to dispose of them to foreigners for foreign money Some Germans even have gone to the extent of buying merchandise, and one with whom the American banker talked told him he had purchased a fairly large consignment of canned foods through a smuggler and that he expected to realize a good sized profit on the transaction "when things get right.

It is forbidden to send money cept with the f the Governe Reichsbank. hard to secure al cases. But o fear the imaxes on capital, as advocated by one of the new German Ministers, are smuggling their funds into adjacent neutral countries. The smugglers are demanding, and are getting, very high rewards for their services.

An American commercial agent who has just returned from Germany, by way of Holland, says he heard of a case where a smuggler had carried out of Germany 1,000,000 marks in paper notes and, under the terms of his contract, was only required to deliver 850,000 marks at a bank in Holland. This same man tells of having talked to an ex-officer in the German army, an aviator, who is rapidly getting rich by plying the trade of smuggler. The former German officer is making reasonably regular trips, by airplane, across the German-Dutch frontier, carrying German paper money upon which he collects 15 to 20 percent commission. On his return trips he brings back with him foodstuffs and soap which sell at many times their value in the neutral countries.

TRIBULATIONS OF THE MARK

Just before the Peace Treaty was signed at Paris, and for a time thereafter, it was rumored in Germany that the German Government had agreed to redeem all the mark notes circulated in Belgium at the former rate of exchange, which is equal to about 23.8 cents in American money. The paper mark at that time was worth less than 6 cents in America and other European countries, and its purchasing value was sadly depreciated in Germany. A good many Germans, hearing the reports, sent money to Brussels and sold it to dealers who sprang up everywhere. The sales for a time, were made at the equivalent of 16 to 18 cents, American money, to the mark and a large business was transacted.
